Gale Follows Fog To Hamper Search

Planes Recalled to Bases To Wait for Clear Weather

A fresh northwest gale followed heavy fog late yesterday to further frustrate plane and ship searchers for survivors of the freighter Pennsylvania, lost in the Pacific since Wednesday.

Winds of 40 to 45 miles an hour, a falling barometer, and poor visibility made up the 5 p.m. weather report radioed from the B.C. weathership Stonetown, from her search area about 500 miles west of the northwest tip of Vancouver Island.

Two hours earlier, the Coast Guard coordination centre at Seattle called off planes in the area because of heavy fog and visibility of less than 300 feet.

If weather permits, 12 aircraft will join in the search today.

Two U.S. Air Force B17's and an R.C.A.F. Lancaster bomber stationed at Port Hardy are among the search force.

STILL HOPING

T. E. Morrison, transport department agent in Victoria, who stays in touch with the Stonetown, said last night that hope has not yet been given up for the 45 or 46 men of the Pennsylvania.

"If they got into lifeboats, they could have drifted a long way," he said.

Ships in the area today will be the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Klamath, the Stonetown, the U.S. freighter Pelican State and the Honduras freighter Riomar.

Debris, first clue to the fate of the freighter, was found at dusk Friday, during one of the greatest air-sea searches in North Pacific history.

The Stonetown said it had spotted a hatch cover, lumber and plates, some 34 miles south-by-southeast of the ship's last reported position.

A search plane radioed it had spotted 15 boxes, an oil slick and olive-colored drums with yellow ends, 14 miles southeast of the spot from where the freighter sent out an SOS Wednesday.

The search area Friday covered some 3,600 square miles of the area where the debris was spotted.

Meanwhile, families and relatives of the Pennsylvania crew members waited and prayed for their safety.

Mrs. Joseph Plover, Portland, Ore., wife of the ship's captain, told reporters:

"We're just praying and hoping. If we only knew for sure they had time to launch the boats. Sometimes ships go down so fast. It's terrible to be out there so long in the cold and dark."

Capt. Plover was master of the first merchant ship to land at the Anzio beachhead during the Second World War.

"We thought when he got through the war, he would always get through," said Mrs. Plover.

Strong Winds Expected

Gale-force winds with lower temperatures are due to sweep across Vancouver Island today.

Gale warnings were posted all along the Pacific coast as a new storm that formed in the Gulf of Alaska made its way steadily south all yesterday.

Winds up to 40 miles from the southeast were forecast to hit the north and west coasts of the Island at midnight last night and reach the Straits of Georgia and Juan de Fuca early today. They will change to westerly at 30 miles an hour later in the day.

Snow that fell on the southern part of the Island yesterday melted in most areas under clear, sunny skies, but a heavy fog was reported in Duncan last night, and most up-Island roads are still treacherous.

At Alberni, the Hump was fairly clear last night, and safe for driving, if caution was observed.

Parked Cars Get Tires Cut

SEATTLE, Jan. 12 (AP)—Vandals today slashed tires on approximately 150 automobiles and trucks parked in the Skyway Park area.

Roads, Railways Blocked As Snow Buries Nevada

By the Associated Press

A severe storm swirled through the Sierra Nevadas yesterday, burying Reno, Nev., under more than 18 inches of snow—heaviest fall there in 14 years.

Heavy snow piled to record depths in the Sierras. The blizzard closed all but one land route to northern Nevada. All plane flights were canceled in the storm area.

Two westbound Southern Pacific streamliners — carrying 450 passengers — were blocked by snowslides in the Donner Summit area. Passengers aboard the S.P.'s City of San Francisco and Overland Limited from Chicago were in no danger.

Many Reno residents were snowbound in their homes. All available city and private snow removal equipment was thrown into the task of clearing streets, and opening blocked highways.

Main highways between California and Nevada were impassable.

Parts of Northern California were beset with floods after a bout with snow, rain and winds. Some points in Central California had over two inches of rain.

Flood water drove some 1,500 people from low-lying homes in the San Francisco Bay area.

The snow storm raged all along the Northern California Sierra and into Oregon.

Coldest spots in the U.S. were Great Falls, Mont., International Falls, Minn., both eight degrees below zero.

Vandals Smash Machines in Shop

Vandals, apparently bent more on destruction than robbery, smashed their way through the offices and showrooms of the Northern Electric Company, Blanshard and Discovery, last night.

"It looked as if a hurricane had gone through," said janitor Bob Twyman, 852 Courtney Street, who found the damage and phoned police when he reported for work at 9.30 p.m.

Police said the vandals smashed a window, reached in and lifted a latch to enter the premises, then proceeded systematically to smash and tear their way through the building, looting sporadically as they went.

Every drawer and desk was rifled. Files that took years to build up were torn and scattered throughout the building.

Two billing machines from the front office counter had been dashed to the floor, smashed, and the bills strewn about the office.

Batteries, a flashlight and possibly two mantel radios were stolen.

The vandals broke off the handle from the office safe but were unable to open it.

Police said that they apparently left through the building's back door and over the fence, pulling down the fence as they went.

Police blame the destruction and the theft on the same group of youths who they believe early last week broke into another electrical appliance store and a building supply house where they wrecked an expensive typewriter.

Hotel Blaze Fatal to Two

CINCINNATI, Jan. 13 (Sunday) (AP) — A fire burned through the top three floors of the Sinton Hotel's annex early today killing at least two persons.

An hour and a half later, Capt. George Pearcy, night police chief, said the blaze was out and firemen were "positive everyone else escaped."

The dead were Raymond Hatrack, of Mount Carmel, Pa., and an unidentified air force officer.

Hatrack was believed to have jumped from either the eighth or ninth floor and landed on a third floor roof separating the annex from the hotel proper. He died in the receiving ward of General Hospital.

Super-Carrier Annually For Decade Aim of U.S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (INS).—Navy Secretary Kimball announced plans tonight to build one super-aircraft carrier a year for the next decade if the cold war continues and said some may be atomic-powered.

Kimball, in a speech before the annual banquet of the National Sojourners in Washington, also announced that five large destroyers to hunt down submarines are being launched to meet a possible Russian undersea menace.

The navy chief said the U.S. fleet by mid-year will have an additional four battleships, 12 aircraft carriers, six cruisers and more than 100 destroyer-type vessels as well as 25 modern submarines. He said 500 ships already have joined the navy since its current expansion began.

Kimball's remarks about atom-powered carriers came after he announced that 140 ships of various types are under construction, including the first super-carrier, the U.S.S. Forrestal, named for the late defense secretary.

He said that the Forrestal will embody the latest advances in naval aviation. The vessel is a 59,000-ton carrier designed to launch atom-bomb carrying planes.

The first of the five anti-sub vessels was launched at Camden, N.J., Dec. 29. Designated the U.S. Norfolk, the ship is a destroyer leader, a new cruiser-type craft.

The Norfolk, first combat vessel to be launched by the navy since the Second World War, displaces 5,500 tons and cost about $44,000,000, exclusive of ordnance. She is capable of more than 30 knots and is twice as large as the average destroyer.

The other sub-killers will be launched this spring.

Kimball said that the ships will be equipped with new electronic devices for tracking down submarines. Their speed will exceed 30 knots.

The navy secretary observed that submarines will be the greatest menace in the event of war. He declared that unless enemy subs can be defeated, "we could most certainly lose a war."

February 26 Likely Session Start; Cuts in Personal Income Tax Hinted

OTTAWA, Jan. 13 (CP). The heavy legislative agenda taking shape indicates that parliament may again hold two sessions this year.

It was hoped that a special session, called last fall to clear up a backlog of work, would have eliminated the need for two sessions in 1952. But the session was prorogued Dec. 29 with several items still on the order paper.

The feeling is growing among members that it will be a long time before parliament can return to a leisurely session once a year. Experience in the last few years has shown that the pressure of business makes it impossible for parliament to be in recess for six or eight months a year, as was the custom in pre-war days.

Since the end of the last war, two sessions a year have been the rule rather than the exception.

No formal date has been set for the opening of the 1952 session but there is speculation that it will be either Feb. 26 or 28. Some members feel that unless there is a speed-up in work, the session will continue until the end of June and then adjourn until the fall.

A wide variety of measures will be submitted for approval, but possibly none will be more interesting than the 1952-53 budget.

Finance Minister Abbott, with his surplus for 1951-52 running at more than $600,000,000, hinted that he will reduce the tax on cigarettes. He has said he plans to incorporate the 20-per-cent defense surcharge on personal incomes and corporate profits into the regular income and corporation taxes.

TAX REDUCTIONS

There is some speculation that he will reduce both personal income and corporation taxes when he makes the move. There have been unofficial guesses that he will also reduce some excise taxes, notably those on washing machines, refrigerators and electric stoves.

The session will be asked to approve the estimates of expenditures for 1952-53. A major debate on defense is bound to arise on the estimates for the defense department.

A committee on defense expenditures, established at the last session, is scheduled to continue its work.

The government may accede to requests for a committee to study national health insurance plans for Canada.

The Japanese peace treaty will be submitted for ratification. A new extradition treaty with the United States may be submitted after it receives approval of the U.S. congress.

British Battle Egyptian Force

ISMAILIA, Egypt, Jan. 12 (AP) British troops and tanks fought a bloody day-long battle with an organized Egyptian commando force today near the big Tel El Kebir supply base in the Suez Canal zone.

The British late tonight announced the Egyptians suffered 46 casualties out of their force of 100; eight killed, 13 wounded, 25 captured.

The British listed their casualties as one non-commissioned officer killed and two Cameron Highlanders wounded in a land mine explosion.

General Sees Red Disaster

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 13 (Sunday) (AP)—General James A. Van Fleet said today his U.S. 8th Army was "in better condition than ever" and any all-out offensive by the Reds would meet "with complete disaster both on the ground and in the air."

Van Fleet told AP correspondent William C. Barnard that the Reds have increased the size of their air force. But he said the 8th Army would "handle" any Red aircraft sent over U.N. lines in a major offensive.

"Those planes would fall like rain," he said. "It would be something to see."

The general said the Communists now have more artillery in Korea than the 8th Army and that they have also reinforced their armor. But the greatest build-up, he said, was in the Red air force.

Van Fleet said the 8th Army had not been hurt in any way by the lull along the battlefront that has existed since the provisional cease-fire line was established in late November.

U.S. Town Terrorized By Panther

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 12 (INS)—A black panther, one of the most ferocious of jungle beasts, was reported roaming the outskirts of Shreveport, La., today and frightened parents kept their children indoors while posses sought to track the animal.

Authorities accepted the scattered reports of worried citizens who claimed to have seen the panther with a slight shrug of the shoulders until a big-game hunting dog was killed yesterday just outside the city of 120,000 population.

The dog, which had been put on the trail of the mystery cat, was clawed and bitten to death. It was owned by Floyd Jones of Caddo Gap, Ark., a hunter.

Residents who claimed to have seen the cat said it was black, with a long tail.

H. B. Wright, curator of the Louisiana State Exhibits museum, examined the body of the slain dog and said it was the victim of a cat of the puma family, which includes the cougar and panther.

The beast was believed to be hiding in the Lakeview section of the suburbs, a heavily wooded section.

Truman Expected to Ask Congress For Five Billion in Added Taxes

By FELIX COTTEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (INS).—Official sources said today that President Truman will ask congress for a minimum of $5,000,000,000 in new taxes and much stronger price, rent and credit controls despite reluctance of the lawmakers to grant them.

The president will outline his tax and control proposals in his annual economic message, which will go to congress next Wednesday.

Mr. Truman will review in the message the state of national economy, including plans for industrial expansion to expedite the rearmament program and production goals. He will renew his warning that inflationary dangers rise as defense production increases.

In his "state of the union" message, delivered last Wednesday, the president declared taxes must continue high "over the next few years" and said he would discuss details in the economic report and budget message. The budget will be submitted Jan. 21.

Officials predict that he will request as a minimum that congress provide the remainder of his program of a little more than $10,000,000,000 submitted in 1951. This would mean another $5,000,000,000, since congress voted $5,500,000,000.

The president heretofore has insisted that the defense program should be financed on a "pay-as-we-go" basis. He is expected to state again that this should be the aim. However, it has been intimated that he will not press for taxes sufficient to balance the budget in the next fiscal year.

OUT OF QUESTION

Preliminary estimates indicate that this would require about $13,000,000,000. It is generally acknowledged that a tax program of this size would be out of the question. The most optimistic administration hope now is that there may be sufficient taxes to balance the budget after the "hump" in defense spending has passed.

Mr. Truman is certain to submit to congress a large program for closing tax "loopholes," including reduction of depletion allowances for oil and other minerals.

However, the opposition in congress to new taxes is so strong that, even if it were not a presidential election year, the prospect for a new boost would be regarded as remote.

Senate Republicans are on record as opposing another tax increase. This, it is generally believed, clinches the matter, particularly since Chairman George (D.), Georgia, has announced he will not sponsor another tax increase bill, short of "all-out war."

Young Will Occupy Colonist Finance Desk

The Colonist announces today the appointment of Harry Young as its financial and business editor. His well-informed financial column, which is widely read on Vancouver Island, appears today on Page 8 and will be henceforth a regular feature in The Colonist.

Mr. Young resigned from a previous Victoria post three weeks ago to take up this position with The Daily Colonist. Under his direction The Colonist intends to consolidate its financial and business section, by giving full market reports and up-to-the-minute business and financial news.

Young, who started his financial column in Victoria more than a year ago, came here from Glasgow, Scotland, more than three years ago. In Glasgow he held an executive editorial position with Lord Beaverbrook's Glasgow Evening Citizen, and was formerly with The Daily Herald and The Sunday Mail. He was well known in Scottish financial and sporting circles, and was a regular commentator on current events with the British Broadcasting Corporation.

He is an active member of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and is deeply interested in all business activity on Vancouver Island and in western Canada generally.

Last summer he was invited by the Aluminum Co. of Canada to visit its plants in eastern Canada.

Among his other activities, Young is a member of the executive committee of the Boy Scouts Association of Victoria.

Truce-Talkers Haggle in Vain

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 13 (Sunday) (AP). — Allied and Red truce negotiators haggled fruitlessly for one hour and 10 minutes Sunday on how to supervise a Korean armistice.

An official U.N. spokesman said nothing new was offered by either side. The sub-committee adjourned until Monday.

The question of military airfields was again the stumbling block. It is the last point of disagreement holding up a solution to the truce supervision question.

ALLABOARD

By G. E. Mortimore

United Nations General Assembly has voted for an international standing army to check aggression.

Not long ago, visionaries felt the time was at hand when such an army would replace national forces. But now that those forces stand ready to fly at one another's throats in the interests of peace, that hope has receded.

Will it ever return? Ask a fortune teller. As a prerequisite, the nations will have to surrender a large amount of their sovereignty. And since the two great armed camps have totally opposite ideas on how the world should be governed, such a surrender seems unlikely just now.

Curiously enough, surrender of the rights of nations has gone forward on both sides of the Iron Curtain. On the Red side the process is nearly complete. Only the hollow shells of nations remain there.

On our side, North Atlantic nations have moved far toward military unity, and some European nations have moved far toward economic unity. Talk of political unity has been bandied around.

But unity on one side or the other means nothing as long as the two systems remain at odds.

* * *

The international army was approved by the United Nations over savage Russian opposition. It allows the U.N. to "call on regional security forces, such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, to meet aggression anywhere."

Russia would naturally not tolerate such forces being used against herself. That would mean full war. They could be used only for squabbles at the outposts. If a new Korea developed, the official "nternational army" would be thrown into the scale against the unofficial counterpart mustered by the Reds.

So the new move simply strengthens our side, at best. It does not exactly "widen the gulf" between East and West, because the gulf was almost as wide as it could be already.

* * *

We can get real collective security, and a real international army, only two ways: An upheaval inside the U.S.S.R., or war. The third alternative, "peaceful co-existence," is desired by most people on this side of the Curtain.

But this choice has nothing to do with collective security. Communists appear to recognize no compromise, so it would be a simple, old-fashioned balance of power.

* * *

Only after the present deadlock has been shattered in one way or another can we have an international police force. By then, national armies will be forbidden, and countries will yield their authority to a "parliament of the world" as individuals yield their authority to a parliament of the nation.

Would Russian troops in the international police force obey orders to march on Russia, or French troops to march on France? I think the force would have to be drawn from a new race of cosmopolitans.

Thousands of children would be reared from infancy with an international outlook, brought up to speak three or more languages equally well, freed from the emotional pressure of patriotism.

They would have spare-time cadet training from an early age. The suitable ones would be enrolled, if they wished, in the World Army.

Recruits would be drawn from among unwanted children, orphans and displaced infants of the Third World War. But for the sake of people alive now, let's hope it doesn't come to that.

Noted Old Character Jolts Doctor

CHEMAINUS, Jan. 11—It was a dilly of a day for Butch, a well-known old character who lives near McBride Corner in Chemainus.

Almost toothless, orange-haired, Butch gave Chemainus residents a chuckle recently by giving a doctor an unusual jolt and swallowing a bitter dose of aureomycin.

It all started when Butch, a huge Persian cat owned by W. H. Olsen, caught a cold. He didn't eat for a week, and it looked as if he might not recover.

Mr. Olsen dropped in to a drug store to look for a suitable cold remedy for cats. He didn't find one, but the druggist had an idea.

"Why not give him penicillin?" he asked. "Or what about aureomycin?"

At that moment a doctor entered the store and the druggist, deadpan, said, "Doctor, I'm prescribing for a respiratory case. Would you recommend penicillin or aureomycin?"

The doctor considered the matter weightily. "Aureomycin," he said decisively.

"Good," the druggist said. "We'll give it to the patient orally."

"No, no," the doctor said, "aureomycin is far too bitter to be swallowed. It'll have to be injected."

"Impossible," the druggist said. "The patient won't hold still. We'll have to sprinkle it on the patient's hair and let him lick it off."

The doctor's reply cannot be printed.

League Hits Rate Boost For Power

Unanimous opposition to a further increase in light and power rates was expressed at the latest meeting of the executive of the Canadian Citizens' League, Victoria branch.

Opposition was also voiced to the provincial government allowing the B.C. Electric Co. the "dangerous precedent of making up losses on gasoline-driven bus transportation by increasing power rates."

It was felt by the league members that each operation should be kept entirely separate and self-supporting.

Copies of the statement of opposition to these measures were sent to government officials and the Public Utilities Commission.

One league member, referring to the proposed boost in rates, said, "The indecent haste in which this was put through covers a fear of the public being given time to analyze the situation.

"Nothing should have been done until the legislature sat and members debated the subject."

The league also forwarded to Major-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., M.P., an appreciation for his recent newspaper comments on conditions in West Europe.

Offers Up to $112,000 Mean Nothing to Carlsen

FALMOUTH England, Jan. 12 (AP). — Capt. Kurt Carlsen stubbornly rejected today all fat offers to cash in on his 14-day saga aboard the Flying Enterprise. He said he was just not interested.

He did that most of the day in a Cornish hotel five miles from town, dodging promoters with contracts all ready to sign for story and movie rights, television and radio appearances and endorsement of commercial products.

Disappointed and somewhat bewildered, these men sat around hotel lobbies and most of them conceded there was no chance now at least of changing the courageous skipper's mind.

When he stepped ashore yesterday Carlsen said "I most certainly do not want honest efforts . . . to save my ship to be commercialized in any way."

And when Carlsen makes up his mind it is hard to change him. His stubborn but losing fight to save his ship from the angry Atlantic proved that.

He has turned a deaf ear to offers totaling between $84,000 and $112,000 which have come from the United States, Britain, France and Denmark.

Still catching up on the sleep he lost aboard the ill-fated Enterprise, Carlsen said he wants only to get back to his wife and two children in Woodbridge, N.J., and then get another ship and go back to sea. His company, The Isbrandtsen Line, has assured him that another ship, perhaps another Flying Enterprise, will be assigned to his command.

But before returning to his life's work at sea he will be lionized at a luncheon in London on Monday and a ticker tape parade in New York.

Still wearing borrowed clothes, the 37-year-old captain ventured out of his hotel only long enough to visit his shipping agent and lawyers.

A crowd of about 300 admirers quickly surrounded him and touched off an impromptu demonstration. Police quickly cleared a way for him.

He spent an hour and a half clearing away legal angles involved in the sinking of the Enterprise. Afterward Philip Fox, the shipping agent, said Carlsen had completed his business here and was free to travel to London.

Stalin Reported In Failing Health

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, Jan. 12 (AP) — The usually well-informed Dutch newspaper Nieuwe Rotterdamse Courant said today Prime Minister Stalin underwent an operation for heart trouble Dec. 19, two days before his 72nd birthday.

His health has been declining since, the paper said. Quoting from Russian embassy sources in Berlin, the [illegible] is in a sanatorium near Gori, his hometown in Georgia, and members of the Politburo have gone there.

Squabbling Delays German Army

PARIS, Jan. 12 (AP)—Political squabbling over French domestic affairs threatens a new delay on the much-postponed project for getting West Germans into uniform for western defence.

The French Communists take a lot of satisfaction in this.

They say they're protecting France against the German military giant who invaded her three times in 80 years. The possibility of a Russian invasion doesn't worry Communists at all.

Jacques Duclos, the pastry cook who became the Red leader in parliament, rubbed his hands in satisfaction when Premier Rene Pleven's cabinet was ousted Monday night.

"I'm glad the cabinet is out because that holds up the German Army," he said in an unusual chat with reporters.

"You mean the European Army?" he was asked.

"Oh, it comes to the same thing," he replied.

The United European Army appears the only plan under which the French Parliament would approve arming Germans. Many Frenchmen have a real fear of an independent German Army. The European defence community, as the new plan is officially called, is designed to calm that fear by putting all German troops under a supra-national authority. Most French, Italian, Belgian, Dutch and Luxembourg troops would also join the pool. The army so formed would be one of those under command of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's supreme headquarters.

Pleven proposed this idea after France found herself alone among the North Atlantic Allies in opposition to organizing German divisions under German command.

The complete plan was to have been ready for approval by the Atlantic Council meetings in Rome last month. It wasn't.

Until Pleven or someone else succeeds in forming a new cabinet, France has only a caretaker government. Foreign Minister Robert Schuman is only a caretaker, too.

New Treatment For Sclerosis To Be Tested

TORONTO, Jan. 11 (CP). A controlled test in a new treatment for multiple sclerosis, a disease which impairs the central nervous system, will start shortly at Sunnybrook Hospital here, it was announced today.

Sixty selected patients will take part in the project—a joint effort of the patients, the supervising doctors, the department of veterans' affairs, the Central Ontario Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada and the Atkinson Charitable Foundation, which is contributing $10,000.

Treatment includes regular periods of scientifically-planned exercises.

The new technique is opposed to the old treatment of having multiple sclerosis sufferers remain as motionless as possible.

U.N. Asks End To Segregation

PARIS, Jan. 12 (Reuters).—The United Nations General Assembly today voted to ask South Africa to suspend her laws segregating the negro populations into "approved" dwelling districts.

The resolution passed by a vote of 44 to 0 with 14 abstentions, including Canada and other Commonwealth nations. The U.S. voted in favor.

Boycott Looms On Royal Visit

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Jan. 12 (AP).—Colombo's new mayor, chosen two days ago by a coalition of Marxists and breakaway members of the United National party, announced today he will boycott all ceremonies connected with the coming visit of Princess Elizabeth.

The mayor, C. T. Grero, said the Colombo municipal council would deny all assistance to the central government of Ceylon in reception and ceremonies organized for the Royal visit. The Princess, with her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, is due here Feb. 14 for a week's stopover on the way to a Royal tour of Australia and New Zealand.

Fire Destroys Edson Stores

EDSON, Alta., Jan. 12 (CP) — A $100,000 fire today destroyed a cafe and two stores in Edson's business district.

The blaze, spectacular in its early stages, was brought under control during the afternoon by volunteer firemen under chief Ted Semeniuk.

The destroyed buildings — the C. and Q. cafe, H. A. Switzer's drug store, and the Bon Ton department store — were all of frame construction, with walls adjoining.

Edson, with a population of about 2,000, is a railway town midway between Edmonton and Jasper.

Alexander Is Host At Churchill Dinner

OTTAWA, Jan. 12 (CP)—Leading members of the British and Canadian governments including Prime Minister Churchill and Prime Minister St. Laurent joined tonight at a dinner party at Rideau Hall, home of Governor-General Viscount Alexander.

The dinner was given by Viscount Alexander in honor of the 77-year-old British Prime Minister. It was considered unlikely that Mr. Churchill and Mr. St. Laurent got around to discussing world and state affairs, at least on a formal basis.

That will come tomorrow when Mr. Churchill confers privately with Mr. St. Laurent in his home. Later, they will lunch together and Monday Mr. Churchill will meet the Canadian cabinet.

The dinner guest list included eight or 10 of Mr. St. Laurent's cabinet ministers, none of whom were identified by Government House. However, they are concerned with defense and other such problems.

Also in the British party were Commonwealth Secretary Lord Ismay; Lord Cherwell, cabinet atomic expert; Lt.-Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, former vice-chief of the Imperial general staff, and Sir Roderick McGrigor, First Sea Lord.

Earlier, Prime Minister Churchill paid a visit to the Parliament Buildings and placed a wreath in the memorial chamber to Canada war dead.

After placing the wreath, he paused a minute in quiet meditation before the Book of Remembrance bearing the names of the men who died in the First World War.

The wreath bore this legend: "To the undying memory of those Canadians who gave their lives in two world wars, this wreath is laid by the prime minister of the United Kingdom."

Following this visit, Prime Minister Churchill met with officials of the British diplomatic service. The talks carried on during lunch at the home of British High Commissioner Alexander Clutterbuck. Conversation is believed to have centred around his recent Washington talks with President Truman.

Investigators Coast-to-Coast Seek "Torch" Sweaters' Source

By International News Service

Authorities from coast to coast worked diligently Saturday night to warn the public and find the source of hundreds of "torch" sweaters sold by house-to-house salesmen.

A 17-year-old Baltimore boy was among 10 persons in the nation who have been injured when the explosively inflammable garments ignited.

The Baltimore youth, whose incident was typical, is Jetson Franklin. He told police that he bought a sweater from a truck driver. Then the boy struck a match to light a cigarette.

There was a sudden flash as the flame neared the sweater he wore and p-o-o-f—the sweater had disappeared. Young Franklin said it exploded. He was treated for burns at a hospital.

In nearby Washington, D.C., B. W. Brock read about "torch" jackets in the newspapers and heard about them in radio newscasts. He had just purchased two sweaters from a truck driver. To test them, he shoved a lighted match near the garments.

Brock then called police to tell them he had owned two "torch" sweaters but both went up in flames when he made his test.

At Fall River, Mass., Manuel Morris put on his bargain sweater and made the mistake of walking near a gas stove. A sudden flash of fire left him burned and sweaterless.

The "torch" sweaters first appeared in Los Angeles in December. Since then, at least eight persons have been burned in sweater fires in that city. Another sweater fire victim was recorded in Brooklyn.

Investigators seized stocks of the torch sweaters in Oakland, Sacramento and Fresno.

PEDDLER JAILED

A suspected peddler of the sweaters was jailed in Porterville, Calif., and released under $1,000 bond. He had 80 sweaters in his possession.

Two of the "torch" sweaters were found in Orlando, Fla., and another was turned over to police in Miami.

Detroit police announced they found 300 of the "torch" variety of sweaters in the motor city and opened an investigation.

New York city detectives investigated a report that the "torch" sweaters were being manufactured in a Manhattan building but found the factory had been closed for a week. The manufacturer was reported out of the city seeking a chemical to fireproof his product.

The sweaters have been priced from $1.50 to $15 and passed off as "seconds."

Movie Tiff Appears Closed Book

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12 (INS). —The James Mason-William Saroyan face slapping in a movie theatre appeared to be a closed book in Hollywood tonight with neither celebrity having anything more to say about it.

Actor Mason assertedly took offense at playwright Saroyan's running comment on the film being unreeled in a Beverley Hills movie palace, strode down the aisle and slapped his face.

The British-born actor said that he hauled off on Saroyan because after 15 minutes of steady talk while the Civil War was being fought on the screen in "Red Badge of Courage" was just too much for him.

"I did what every theatre patron has wanted to do sometime or other," said the actor.

"Let Mason tell his story. I have nothing to say," said Saroyan.

Oddities

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Jan. 12 (AP). — Firemen who answered an alarm today in a private home found:

A $2,500 fire, a sleepy baby sitter, two other men trapped by smoke and flames and four cases of measles.

The aroused baby sitter rushed to the trapped men.

He, too, became trapped, but the firemen rescued all three men; led to safety the sitter's four charges, all of whom had measles, and doused the fire.

ADEL, Ia., Jan. 12 (INS).—Const. Archie Dillon tonight was nursing a sore thumb after shooting himself with his pipe.

Dillon lighted his pipe in the sheriff's office at Adel, Ia., and after a few contented puffs there was a sudden report and a bullet shot through the ceiling after grazing the constable's thumb.

Dillon said the .22-calibre cartridge apparently got mixed up in his tobacco on a recent hunting trip.

Czechs Condemned For 'High Treason'

LONDON, Jan. 12 (Reuters)—Five Czechs said to have been "trained by the American espionage service in western Germany" were sentenced to death for high treason and spying against the Communist regime in Czechoslovakia today, Prague radio reported. Three others were sentenced to life imprisonment. The state prosecutor alleged that the eight became "tools of the American imperialists."

Capital City Grant

VICTORIA'S claim to a capital city grant has been valid since the time in the '60's when the capital of the newly united Province of British Columbia was moved here from New Westminster. It rests primarily on the fact that a seat of government should by its nature be something of a show place; not the largest commercial centre nor the most important communications point, but the centre of government, in this instance for British Columbia. Before any tax-exempt arguments are considered, the implications arising from the selection of this community as the centre of provincial government are fundamental to the argument in favor of a capital city grant. Moreover this is a claim recognized by civilized national governments everywhere and by most state and provincial administrations in both the old and the new worlds.

There is no province in Canada with better natural facilities for its provincial capital than British Columbia. Victoria is by nature a show place, and the little that needs to be done to cultivate that and year by year to add to this generous natural start both could and should be systematically done. Obviously, too, that is not a charge on the citizens of this community as such; but one arising out of the fact that this is the provincial capital and has been for more than 90 years. The real thought behind this portion of the long-established claim is that such a grant would be directly for the improvement of the appearance, facilities and amenities of the seat of government. For nine decades Victoria has borne all such expense unaided, and that is a cardinal point in the claim.

A grant in recognition of the civic services which Victoria provides to provincial government direct holdings within the city, now valued at more than $8,750,000, is also a fair claim; because part of it, and a material portion at that, is related directly to the standard of service that must be given in this, the seat of government. With regard to the other part of the same claim, the loss through foregoing of tax revenues from the Crown, the Dominion has made already its peace with Canadian municipalities on this score. The province has not yet done so, and will naturally be reluctant to set such a precedent. Here again, however, factual reasons exist. Fire prevention, water distribution, policing and other services at a stepped up volume have to be made available by reason of such concentrated Crown occupancy. The contra claim that provincial payrolls offset some of these losses is not so valid today as it was when Victoria housed almost all the civil service.

In raising the issue now the city council has chosen a rather unstable time, in view of the provincial government's own obvious embarrassments. Notwithstanding that, the grounds upon which a capital city grant is due to Victoria—and should long ago have been instituted on a definite annual basis—are real and only the more valid with the passing of the years. Why should one single community of British Columbia have to find the special cost of the public improvement of the locus of government, when there are approximately 80 other cities, towns and villages in the province with every bit as much interest in the result?

One-Man Show

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN could have had fun with the setup for the Buttle Lake appeal scheduled to begin next Friday. When Lands Minister E. T. Kenney opens the hearing, unless some change is made in the meantime, he will to all intents and purposes play the roles of appellant, respondent, judge and jury. The case of the magistrate who fined himself for a traffic infraction had nothing on this.

Here is how Mr. Kenney came to be cast for his one-man show: Water Comptroller Tredcroft, whose decision in the Buttle Lake case is the subject of the appeal, heads a branch of government coming under the lands minister's jurisdiction. That makes Mr. Kenney the respondent. The appeal has been taken by the attorney-general's department, and Mr. Kenney is acting attorney-general. That makes him the appellant. It is true that he is filling the shoes of the A.G. in the routine way of governments when cabinet ministers are absent from the capital; but for the time being he is the attorney-general for all that. Then in top billing we find Mr. Kenney appointed as an "impartial" cabinet minister to hear and decide the appeal, which makes him judge and jury. Of course he will have no actual part in the presentation of the appeal or the answer to it, but that fact detracts little from the comic opera atmosphere of the whole thing.

Mr. Kenney is a man of the utmost integrity and fairness, who could, one feels sure, rule upon any matter coming before him with complete impartiality, regardless of how far it involved him in official capacities. This, then, is not written as any reflection on him personally, but merely to say that no man should be placed in such a position. Someone else should be appointed to hear the appeal, to save Mr. Kenney embarrassment and to put the impartiality of the hearing beyond question.

Songs of the Old Brigade

"OLD SOLDIERS never die, they simply fade away." But when they do, they leave their songs behind. This is the case with the men Canada knows as the "old sweats," the familiar affectionate name bestowed on the warriors of past days.

Writing from Germany, where he reports on this country's 27th Brigade, Canadian Press correspondent Douglas How says that time has caught up with these veterans, who are missing from this latest of Canada's overseas brigades. It would be surprising if this were not so. A veteran of the 1914-18 war would be in his fifties at least, and that is too old an age for further military excursions in the ranks.

Many ribbons of the First World War were in evidence among the Canadian troops of the Second World War, but six more years has told the difference. The 27th Brigade is a young man's formation, as is right and proper. If the "old sweats" are not among them, however, the tunes they sang and marched to in the old days of 1914-18 are still the most popular. European highways echo as they did long ago with "Tipperary," "Pack Up Your Troubles," and all the other rollicking refrains of the old brigade.

Strangely enough, no new song emerged from the last war to supplant those well-established favorites. Other songs are sung too, of course, but in the forefront are those which rang out with so much vigor and enjoyment in the First World War. To quote Mr. How, "the old sweats are gone, absent with leave and with great honor from the ranks of the New Brigade." The legacy they have left behind, however, links both old and new in precious partnership.

PARKING LOTS

Sir,—The motorists of the city, whether visitors or residents, are paying for the parking meters and the space they occupy pro tem. Why not use the money collected by these meters to finance the purchase of off-street parking lots and thereby eliminate traffic congestion of our main thoroughfares? Attention town planners.

GARBAGE COLLECTION

Sir,—Your article regarding garbage collection is timely.—On this street the last previous collection was Dec. 24, and the next one was not until Jan. 8. Then to make matters worse the garbage man calmly removed the top bundles of rubbish and put them in the overflow box, presumably to be collected at some later date. Consequently, I had to take the box out to the roadside, still leaving a load of ashes in the basement for next time.

This question of "When will they call?" has been a source of annoyance for a long time. Surely it is possible to organize the routes so that each district has its own day for collection. Should there be a holiday during the week, then the collection would be one or two days later, according to the length of the holiday. It would be a great help to householders to know definitely when to expect the garbage men, thus enabling them to make sure that their garbage is all out, ready for collection.

Even the people at the City Hall do not seem to know, as any time I have phoned I have been told, "They should be around on such and such a day," in a tone which suggests that they should be, but you never can tell!

CARS FOR THE BLIND

Sir,—Commencing on Jan. 23 after a short Christmas recess, the White Cane Club of Victoria will meet at Memorial Hall from 2 to 4 p.m., with an average attendance of 90. Sometimes the meetings are of a social nature; others are addressed by some well-known person, and all are made interesting by the program committee.

A number of volunteering ladies and gentlemen now bring these blind people from their homes to Memorial Hall and take them back again after the meetings, but unfortunately the number of blind in our city is steadily increasing. At the moment we hope that there may be someone in the district of Wilkinson Road who would bring in a woman who, through a tragic accident, has been so blind for 19 years, that except for the heat she does not know when the sun is shining. Perhaps another volunteer would pick up a blind woman on the Gorge Road.

They will not be asked to contribute one penny to the funds of the club. They will be amazed at the courage and cheerfulness of its members, and will return home realizing, perhaps as never before, what it would mean to suddenly lose one's sight.

If volunteers will kindly telephone B 5049, write or call, fullest details will be gladly given.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of glues—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

WELL, well, I give up. And so, I hope, would anyone rise in his right senses. Yes, even at the risk of being dubbed ignorant or old-fashioned.

I am looking right now at some pictures in Life magazine. Ye gods!

Now, I'm not condemning Life. 'Tis true this magazine can switch from the sublime to the ridiculous in one single issue with consummate aplomb, but nevertheless it's a fine pictorial record of the fads and foibles of the times. No, it isn't the magazine, it's what its pictures indicate.

Specifically the series on sculpture—so-called, but actually the equivalent in stone of doodling in oils.

These particular images, if I may thus term them, are prize-winners, which makes the offense more heinous. Seemingly there has been a contemporary sculpture show at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and this is the result.

What the word "contemporary" has to answer for!

* * *

Let me assess the first specimen before my eyes. This is a carving of the upper halves of two men, captioned "a friendly approach between two human beings." One of them is tucking the other under the chin, so the caption might pass muster. Not the sculpture.

The figures are uncouth shapes, approximating those of cartoons which blazen aloud that the artists can't draw. The faces are frozen, the arms are mere lumps of stone, and the whole effect is crudely amateurish. No two men ever lived who looked like those counterfeit models.

Yet this effigy won the first prize, worth several thousands of dollars.

Exhibit number two is a series of joints and bulges alleged to be a human figure and captioned "Striding Man." The caption is wrong to begin with, for allowing this to be a man he is not striding; the spars that pass for arms are clasped above what substitutes for a head, as in a standing position.

Admittedly the general pose of this cubist conglomeration reminds you of a human figure, but only as a child's pile of toys jumbled together might accidentally look like a mountain. If you can imagine half-a-dozen chair legs, a vase or two, a few hoops, plates and jagged pieces of iron all stuck together and dipped in bronze—then you are looking, as I am, at "Striding Man."

The third specimen, albeit the second prize-winner, I can only call the Thing. Without a nameplate no one could possibly take it for animal, yet it is styled "Animal Form I." I feel certain that without the caption the judges would be as puzzled as I am.

I doubt that I can describe the thing. It's a piece of stone or wood or something that might resemble a twisted potato which tapers down to two kinds of peg-legs, with these stuck into a half-round base.

Heaven knows what Animal Form II could be like.

* * *

Now the foregoing represents what is called modern art. In all seriousness, how can art be art if it is not communicable; that is to say, if no one understands by looking at it what the sculpture, or painting, is supposed to be? Surely a figure or a scene of any kind that needs a label to interpret it cannot have artistic virtue?

As well paint or build a model of a woodshed and title it the Leaning Tower of Pisa.

If productions of this kind are merely a form of self-expression, well and good. Even if they are no more coherent than the creations a three-year-old might concoct with a crayon, and invariably they are not, at least one might accept them in all their weirdness. The point is, however, as the prize-winners cited above demonstrate, that this kind of hocus-pocus is being widely acclaimed and honored as a high form of modern culture.

Hocus-pocus. Either this is precisely what it is, or else a strange malaise is affecting the artistic mind of today. And that is a disturbing thought, since art is something that should stir human emotions, provide an inspiration to mankind, or bring beauty into life.

Guy Fawkes effigies or grotesque abstractions will never do either of these: even though by some bizarre judgment they win large money prizes.

Chemical Warfare and Nerve Agents

By JAMES AUDAIN, Victoria

This is the fourth of a series of articles on atomic, biological and chemical warfare specially written for The Colonist by Mr. Audain on his return from the recent course in ABC warfare conducted at the Royal Canadian Army Medical School at Camp Borden. The articles were written with the concurrence of Major-General C. B. Stein, British Columbia civil defense co-ordinator. Since preparing them Mr. Audain has joined the provincial civil defense organization as an inspector.

ATOMIC war is not by any means the only peril we are likely to be called upon to face should we be attacked with "mass destruction" weapons.

Just because gas was not used in the Second World War there is no reason to suppose it will not be used in the third. When the Allies overran Germany in 1945 it was found that the enemy had considerable stores of a very deadly and poisonous mass destruction agent which we now call "nerve gas," and it would seem that it was only by the grace of God that it was not used against us.

The chemist, Shraeder, who had accidentally discovered the agent fell into the hands of the Western Powers, but a good number of his associates fell into other hands than those of our present allies, hence the extreme importance of thoroughly understanding their lethal possibilities. Considerable development has doubtless been made by both camps, and it is considered that the advent of the nerve agents has changed the whole concept of combat-toxicology and has bestowed upon them an importance second only to that held by atomic blast weapons.

* * *

The chief advantage of deadly and poisonous agents such as those already described lies in the fact that a nation can inflict its will upon its enemies with as little personnel loss as possible and thus gain largely in material and property when it chooses to take over a country. If victory can be obtained through the use of gas alone, without the terrible devastation caused by atomic bombing (H.E. or incendiary) and such damage to industrial potential as took place in Britain, Germany and Japan, it would obviously be much more advantageous for an enemy to use this weapon.

Gas casualties can take a large number of persons out of combat just as effectively as other weapons, and the personnel required for the care and treatment of casualties is, if anything, larger than with other traditional weapons. As a casualty producer in the First World War the chemical weapon proved to be 20 to 30 times as effective weight for weight as other weapons. How much more so now, with the advent of these new discoveries.

* * *

War gasses may be classified in several different ways—according to their physical properties, according to their tactical use and according to their physiological effects.

The physical classification is:

(a) Persistant gas. Requires protection at the end of 10 minutes from the time the agent is placed on the target; e.g., mustard, lewisite.

(b) Non-persistant gases. Do not require protection after 10 minutes; e.g., phosgene, chlorine, etc.

The tactical classification is two-fold: Casualty gases, send the victim to hospital; harassing gases, force the wearing of protective equipment.

The physiological classification is the most convenient method of presenting the properties of the war gases (the first three named are casualty agents, the last two harassing agents):

(1) Nerve gases—gases which attack the functioning of the nervous system.

(2) Blister gases—skin and lung irritants, mustard, lewisite, etc.

(3) Choking gases—lung irritants and choking gases, phosgene, chlorine.

(4) Tear gases—lachrymators.

(5) Nose gases—Irritant smokes causing sneezing and vomiting.

* * *

Nerve Gases—Mostly in liquid form are colorless, odorless and tasteless. Discovered by accident when working on insecticides by a German chemist named Schraeder in 1937. Their general effect is the impairment of function of the nervous system resulting in paralysis and death. They may be produced as a persistent liquid or a volatile gas and their importance lies in their characteristics of extreme high toxicity, their action on the unprotected skin and on the respiratory system, and the difficulty of detection.

Blister Gases—These include those combat chemicals which are absorbed in any part of the body and cause severe blistering of the parts affected. Their chief advantage lies in the fact that only partial protection is provided by the respirator and extra protective clothing is necessary. Their vapor is very injurious to the lungs and as persistent agents they can contaminate ground and other material very thoroughly.

Mustard gas is the most common in this group; it smells like garlic or onions and penetrates clothing and shoes very readily. However, it dissolves in gasoline and kerosene, which are good means of effecting its removal. It reacts violently with chloride of lime and this forms the basis for most decontamination procedures.

Lewisite is more volatile, less persistent and rather less toxic than mustard. It smells like geraniums.

* * *

Choking Gases—A choking gas is a chemical which when breathed causes irritation and inflammation of the breathing apparatus. The possible agents in this class are phosgene, diphosgene and chloropicrin. Of these, only phosgene is likely to be used; it is extremely dangerous owing to its insidious effect and produces symptoms rather like pneumonia. It is effective in low concentrations and one good breath can cause a severe casualty. It is however, extremely solvent in water and so is useless in rainy weather.

Tear Gases—Are substances which irritate the eyes and cause involuntary weeping. They are non-persistent, but force the wearing of the respirator. Their principal use is in civilian life in controlling riots and prison disturbances.

Nose Gases—Agents which cause sneezing, vomiting and acute distress but no serious or permanent injury. All are non-persistent. They are not absorbed by the activated carbon in the respirator as are toxic vapors, but must be filtered out mechanically. They could be used as a prelude to an attack by more toxic agents.

There are several ways of protecting personnel against war gases; the chief being the respirator. This is effective against all known war gases if donned immediately. Remember, however, that with the advent of nerve gas a 1 per cent leak is fatal.

For the liquid gas special clothing is essential. In addition such equipment as gas warning signs, bleaching powder, gas rattles, detector paint, gas spray detectors and gas ointment are all part of the protection equipment to combat an attack by poison gas.

It is, therefore, absolutely essential that the general public should be made fully acquainted with all the protective paraphernalia from the respirator downward; this knowledge will be a large factor in reducing casualties to a minimum.

The respirator gives complete protection to the eyes, nose, throat and lungs against all known war gases, if it fits properly and is maintained in serviceable condition. Further, it enables the wearer to continue to perform his allotted duties efficiently in the presence of gas.

* * *

Poisonous gas can be used in shells, bombs, spray from the air, ground dispensers, rockets, mines and grenades.

Mustard gas and phosgene are standard artillery fillings. The chemical agent is carried inside the shell and distributed when the shell bursts. Aircraft provide a most effective method of disseminating these agents. Large tanks are used from which the agent is dispersed in large drops from high altitudes, or fine spray from lower altitudes. Bombs are widely used when an area is to be contaminated for a long time. Bombs are more useful than spray.

Mines may also be used to prevent occupation of certain ground but this would not be likely to be met with by the civil population.

A rocket filled with nerve gas would prove a highly devastating weapon.

All civilians once issued with respirators should undergo a gas chamber test to confirm the fit of the respirator (not forgetting, that a 1 per cent leak is fatal), give wearer confidence in his mask and allow him to experience tear gas.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

"FIRST come, first served" may well be the very earliest expression of the democratic principle in human history. We can reasonably suppose that it may have been a sign tacked up on the wall of a bake shop in ancient Rome, or a butcher store in Babylon.

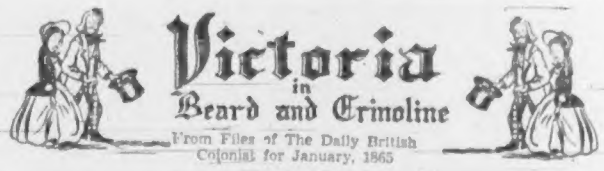
But the more populous the world grows, the harder it becomes to apply this most elementary of democratic principles. Whether in a big department store or the local corner grocery, it is the exception rather than the rule for customers to be waited on in their fair and proper order. So crowded is our world, everybody is encouraged to push in and beat the game.

There is a popular type of quick lunch in our cities that consists of a counter to which the customers come and stand to give their orders. The food is placed on trays, and the customer, on being served, carries the tray off to a table. A person with a sense of justice has no chance whatever in these places. If you do not ignore all your fellow customers and employ every trick to attract a waitress' attention, you may stand half an hour for your turn.

To the manager of one of these places I suggested that he adopt the well-known device of handing customers a numbered card as each enters the door; so that the serving staff at the counter could take them in their proper turn.

"As a matter of fact," said the manager, "I did try out that very scheme a few years ago. Within two weeks, my business had fallen off very badly. It seems there is a considerable number of people who have no desire whatever to be served in their proper turn. Unless they can use their talent for getting ahead of others, they are not happy. Deprive them of their advantage in the form of nerve, gall, push or chiselling, and they won't play. They go elsewhere."

In working out a democratic system for society, there are many little things like this to take into consideration.



From Files of The Daily British Colonist for January, 1865

By G. E. MORTIMORE

FREE trade or tariff? That was the question. The Mechanics' Institute debated the issue. Petitions were being circulated. The Colonial Assembly was to tackle the thing in earnest soon.

In yards of editorial comment, The Daily British Colonist came out strongly for tariffs. Victoria's free port was the one thing that stood in the way of the desired union of the Island colony with Mainland British Columbia, The Colonist said.

". . . Had the free port vagaries been relinquished three years ago we should have been now reaping the fruits of a consolidated union; Victoria would have been today a town little short of 15,000 inhabitants; and the surrounding country, instead of being locked up, a wilderness, in the hands of a few unproductive speculators, would have presented the cheerful sight of agricultural industry.

"We have foundries, wagon factories, window sash factories, breweries, tanneries and other industries that have started into being through the energy of our inhabitants, but the strain has been too great upon them, and with few exceptions, one by one has languished . . .

"We have learned our lesson in political economy by a dear-bought experience. . . . We are left to depend, in order to make a show of our exports, on a few barrels of cranberries gathered by the Indians, and a collection of skins and furs . . ."

Free-trade Vancouver Island had to sell its exports in a protected United States market. Reciprocity should be sought.

The Colonist used John Stuart Mill's argument that new industries deserve tariff protection while they are getting started.

Firemen Likely to Oppose Residence Ruling

ON THE LABOR FRONT

By BILL MAYOR

Victoria local of the International Association of Firefighters (A.F.L.-T.L.C.) will probably oppose a city council committee ruling that requires firemen to live within city limits.

Local 730 probably will again submit a brief to the city as they did recently, said secretary David Pye. He added that official word on the decision is awaited before further action is taken.

Firemen feel they should be allowed to live in any of the three surrounding municipalities. Vancouver firemen are entitled to take up residence in any part of Greater Vancouver, he pointed out.

The council's fire wardens committee Friday voted in favor of a plan requiring all city firemen to live within the city limits.

Of about 100 Victoria firefighters, only two live outside the city. One is on the borderline of Oak Bay and the city, the other is in Esquimalt.

In each case the fireman is closer to work than many fellow workers already residing in the city, Mr. Pye said.

Stand of the local is backed by Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council (A.F.L.-T.L.C.), which passed a motion recently that all civic employees be allowed residence within Greater Victoria.

International Woodworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) have been awarded three certificates of bargaining authority for logging operations including areas on parts of the mainland, Queen Charlotte Islands and north of Kelsey Bay on Vancouver Island. The authority covers employees, except office staff, of Sucre Lumber Co. Ltd., Gibson's Landing; L. M. and N. Logging Co. Ltd., Egmont; and B. and M. Logging Ltd., Squamish.

Machinists Fitters and Helpers Union, Local 3 (C.C.L.) is certified as bargaining authority for crane operators, engineers, hyster and mobile crane operators, truck drivers and compressor engineers at Victoria Machinery Depot.

Nanaimo has been chosen as a centre for a one-day course on human relations in safety and supervision, sponsored by the extension department, University of British Columbia, and the safety department, B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

The course Feb. 1 will have Dr. J. L. Rosenstein as lecturer. He is professor of the department of management at a Chicago, Ill., university.

Subjects will include supervision, human nature, teaching safety, teamwork, job safety analysis, accident records and practical case examples.

The course will be at Canadian Legion Hall. Cost is $6 per person.

* * *

About 70 men of Vancouver Island Coach Lines are balloting on a 2½-cent hourly wage increase, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C.C.L.) reports. The boost, recommended for acceptance by the union's bargaining committee, would make the basic rate to drivers $1.51 hourly.

Other conditions include paid holidays, minimum guarantee to spare drivers and an indemnity provision.

* * *

International Molders and Foundry Workers' Union (A.F.L.-T.L.C.) has returned William Bohne as president of the Victoria local. Other officers are Harvey Roth, vice-president; Archie Clegg, financial secretary; S. Emery, corresponding secretary; Charles Smith, inductor, and John Anastasiou, sergeant-at-arms.

* * *

The I.W.A. local at New Westminster last week suggested classes in English for immigrants arriving at the West Coast. The local felt that the course would enable employers, present employees and immigrants, as potential employees, to work together. The Mainland local pointed out classes at Duncan, spearheaded by the I.W.A., as an example of work to be done with immigrants.

T.L.C. locals meeting this week are: Musicians, today; painters, printing pressmen and bricklayers, Monday; electricians, Tuesday; T.L.C. council, laundry drivers, Wednesday; milk salesmen, bakery salesmen, Thursday; laborers, sheet metal workers, Friday.

C.C.L. locals meeting are: I.W.A., Monday; C.B.R.E., Division 276, Thursday.

Trans-Atlantic Fares Down, Agency Reports

A 5 per cent reduction in trans-Atlantic steamship passenger fares will become effective tomorrow.

Announcement of the reduced fare rate comes from the Trans-Atlantic Passenger Conference, and first word of the change was received here late yesterday by Eric Marshall, travel agent at George Paulin Ltd.

"This is extremely good news to many people in Victoria, and all through the country for that matter," Mr. Marshall said. He said a large number of Victorians were planning to visit Britain this year, "and that number will undoubtedly increase now with the reduced fares."

The reduction, he explained, is because of the near-parity of the Canadian dollar to the U.S. dollar.

Better Tax Deal Gained For B.C., Paper Reports

VANCOUVER, Jan. 12 (CP)—A Vancouver paper says today that British Columbia has won a vastly improved taxation deal from the federal government.

"It is learned that a new agreement will be signed that will give this province approximately an additional $5,000,000 a year for the next five years," the paper said.

An official announcement, following the return of Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb from Ottawa, may be made next week.

The paper says that in the 1952-53 fiscal year payments from Ottawa will exceed $41,500,000. Earlier, it had been reported that the province would receive about $37,000,000.

It will be the 11th year in the series by which the federal government has "rented" the taxing rights in personal income, corporation and inheritance tax fields.

Army Promotes Five Greater Victoria Men

By TREVOR COLLINS

Army officials have announced the promotion of five members of Victoria's 8th Anti-Aircraft Operations Room.

Promoted to lieutenant are: Officer Cadets D. J. Chorlton, L. M. Sherwin and G. G. English, all of Greater Victoria. They successfully completed a two-year officer training course recently.

Appointed officer cadets are: Bdrs. Kenneth Hickford and G. P. Sinnott. They are now attending a six-month, full-time course as officer cadets at the Royal Canadian School of Artillery at Esquimalt.

The new appointees are engaged in anti-aircraft radar, plotting or communications work.

Lieut. English, 25, 1732 Emerson Street, is a native of Vancouver. He served with the Canadian Infantry Corps during the last war and is now employed with the radio branch of the B.C. Forest Service.

Lieut. Chorlton, who lives at Prospect Lake, is also employed with the B.C. Government and is a veteran of five years' service with the R.C.A.F. He is a prominent amateur radio operator.

Lieut. Sherwin, 23 Paddon Avenue, Victoria, was formerly an instructor with the Victoria Air Cadet Squadron. He was [illegible] and is now employed with the provincial finance department.

The two officer cadets are part of the younger generation of military men now being trained by the reserve army in this area.

Officer Cadet Hickford, 19, 804 Craigflower Road, served with the local Air Cadet squadron before joining the army. He received his education at Victoria High School.

Officer Cadet Sinnott, 18, 1113 Pandora, is another native of Victoria. He was educated at Esquimalt High School and attended at two-month army training course at Calgary last year.

Commanding officer of the unit, Major R. V. Parrott, said he was pleased with the aptitude of these men and the keenness they have shown in their work with the unit.

"There is a future for these men in the Canadian Army," he said.

Women recruits are urgently needed by the R.C.A.F. as fighter control operators, radar specialists, clerks and medical assistants.

Flt. Lieut. S. H. Jenkins of the local recruiting office said yesterday that 20 single women between 18 and 29 years old will be accepted immediately if they can meet air force requirements.

Immediately they are accepted and have passed their medical exams the new recruits will be sent to a manning depot at St. John, Que., where they will receive uniforms, and will later be posted to a training centre.

Women will receive the same rates of pay as men, Flt. Lieut. Jenkins said. He also pointed out that a recent increase granted by the government raises the basic monthly pay to $87—all found.

At least one Victoria soldier serving with the 27th Brigade in Germany is being well looked after in the war-torn country.

Pte. Frederick Charman, son of Mrs. G. Charman, 148 St. Lawrence Street, said the German people are very friendly toward Canadian troops.

He was invited to the home of a German family for Christmas dinner and has been their guest at the opera.

He says Canadian cigarettes are hard to get and that soap is expensive in the canteens.

Mrs. Charman sent a letter to the German family thanking them for being kind to her 21-year-old son.

Pte. Charman is the only Victorian in join the Seaforth Highlanders in Vancouver. He joined last May and after training at Valcartier, Que., sailed for Hanover, Germany, early in December.

Group Assails Brief Form Of Hearings

A strong protest over the Public Utilities Commission's failure to hold full public hearings on the B.C. Electric Co.'s application for an increase in electric light rates has been lodged by the Cost-of-Living Committee.

The committee, which fights high prices, protested against the increase and asked for a full public hearing.

The Public Utilities Commission conceded the right to appear "with only one day's notice" and wished the evidence "to be confined to 'new information.'"

The cost-of-living group felt this would not have given it the right to question company representatives.

Growers to Hear Two Ministers

Federal Fisheries Minister R. W. Mayhew and provincial Agriculture Minister H. R. Bowman will be guest speakers at the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association convention opening Tuesday at Penticton.

Mr. Mayhew will address the convention banquet Wednesday evening. Mr. Bowman will address the 63rd annual meeting at the opening session.

To End Annoying Cough, Mix This Recipe, at Home

Here is the well known old recipe which thousands of housewives have found to be a dependable means of breaking up winter coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs very little, but it does give quick relief.

From any druggist, get a 2½ ounce bottle of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 ounce bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and 1 cup water, stirred until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's easy. (Or use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Thus you make 16 ounces of medicine, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This home mixture soothes the irritated throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the phlegm and eases soreness promptly.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a well known and reliable soothing agent for winter coughs. Money refunded if it does not please you in every way.

FOR EXTRA CONVENIENCE GET NEW, READY-TO-USE, PREPARED PINEX.

Oils Again Hit New High As Toronto Prices Climb

TORONTO, Jan. 12 (CP) — Stock market prices climbed today in most sections with western oils still leading the advance.

Western oils set a sixth record high in two days within the first hour's trading.

Trading eased slightly with sporadic turnovers in western oils and industrial activity steady. Volume for the day was about 1,650,000 shares.

Industrials advanced most sections with only two weakened. Papers, utilities, foods, liquors, refining oils, banks, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous industrials posted most gains. Constructions and steels displayed mixed trading while agricultures and retail stores slipped.

Western oils formed the markets strongest sections. General Petroleum, Canada Southern, Scurry and Security Free topped the list of winners. Among those showing losses were Canadian Atlantic, Calvan, Trans Empire and Selburn Warr.

Base metals posted a majority of losses. United Lead, Sherritt-Gordon, Quebec Manitou, Golden Manitou, East Rim, Tungsten and Yukeno all dipped. Cassiar, Barvue, Labrador and Silver Miller bucked the trend to post penny gains.

Senior golds held gains and losses in balance. Malartic advanced and Teck Hughes dropped. Secondary issues showed little trend.

Montreal Steady

MONTREAL, Jan. 12 (CP).—Stock prices continued steady on the Montreal Stock Exchange and curb market.

Both sides of the line balanced with a good number of issues trading at yesterday's closing level. Changes were fractional. Utilities were steady. Senior metals and senior oils were mainly unchanged.

Papers eased a trifle while banks were idle.

Fractional gainers were Canadian Celanese, Canada Salt, Brown, Bell, Aluminium, Consolidated Smelters, Nickel and Noranda. Lower were Canadian Industries, Anglo-Canadian Pulp, Price, Abitibi Preferred, Power Corporation, Hudson Bay Mining and Stelco.

Mines and western oils were steady to mixed in a flow up of the industrial market. Changes were of the penny variety not exceeding the 10 cent bracket. There were no particular features. Industrial volume was 14,900 shares traded and mines had a turnover of 125,300 shares.

Vancouver Up Slightly

VANCOUVER — Stocks were slightly higher, led by oils, at the end of trading. Mines and industrials were steady, mostly unchanged.

Continental Oils jumped 10 cents to $1.30, a new high.

Hargal Oil at 17 cents was up 2 cents. United gained 3 cents to $1.10 and Royal Canadian 3 cents to 27 cents.

Federated Pete at $8.60 gained 10 cents.

In the mines Silvan at $1.43 gained a cent, while Silvan, Estella and Giant Mascot were unchanged. Industrials held the same levels as yesterday.

New York Strong

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP).—Oils took the play away from the rest of the stock market today with a strong advance that put them ahead by fractions to around two points.

Volume expanded rapidly, helped by a number of large blocks, to an estimated 700,000 shares.

Oils were active and higher right from the first.

Ahead were Cities Service, Amerada Petroleum, Standard Oil (N.J.), Sunray Oil, Mid-Continent Petroleum, Socony-Vacuum and Union Pacific.

Volume was boosted by Gulf Oil 3,000 up 1 1-8 at 55, General Instrument 4,700 up 1-2 at 10 1-4, Gar Wood 2,800 up 1-8 at 7 3-4, and Continental Steel 4,500 off 3-4 at 22 3-4.

Canadian issues were mostly higher. Canadian Pacific was up 7-8, International Nickel and Distillers Seagram were both ahead 1-4, and McIntyre advanced 3-4. Dome Mines and Hiram Walker remained unchanged.

On the curb, Giant Yellowknife was ahead 1-8, Royalite Oil gained 1-4 and Lake Shore was off 1-4.

Farmers Seek Egg Floor Price

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Jan. 12 (CP).—A floor price of 42 cents a dozen for grade A large eggs, instead of the present 37 cents, is sough by Fraser Valley producers.

A resolution asking for the higher price, submitted by Eric Flowerdew, poultry chairman, was endorsed Friday at the District "E" Farmers' Institute annual convention.

Dave Hunter of Cloverdale reported that at Dec. 1 the University of British Columbia had shown that cost of production at that time was 44 cents a dozen. Eggs now are nine cents a dozen lower than they were a year ago.

Week in Business

City Bureau Seeks Extra Harbor Site

By HARRY YOUNG, Colonist Business Editor

A move to find a satellite or auxiliary harbor in the Greater Victoria area to relieve the pressure on the present facilities at Victoria Harbor has been launched by the Industrial Bureau under the leadership of its chairman, Bill Mearns.

Two areas are under review. One is Sooke Harbor with its tremendous possibilities, but awkward approach channel, and the other Saanichton Bay, south of Sidney, which has James Island and a spit to protect it from the more turbulent waters of the Gulf of Georgia.

Young

Mearns, with members of his Industrial Bureau, has visited during the past week the Sooke-Jordan River Chamber of Commerce and the Saanich Chamber of Commerce.

He explained to the members of these chambers that Victoria Harbor was already so crowded that it was almost impossible to offer facilities for any other industrial enterprise that needed waterfront facilities.

At least one logging outfit had been turned away because it could not be given sufficient log storage space to meet its mill requirements without interfering with the supply system of existing sawmills.

"There is very little we can do to improve the situation at Victoria Harbor," said Mearns, and he went on to explain how heartbreaking it was to have to turn down potential new industries. "That is why we are looking for some place in the Greater Victoria area, which we might offer as an alternative to future inquirers."

Deeply Interested

The Sooke-Jordan River and Saanich Chambers of Commerce both declared themselves deeply interested in the possibility of industrial development for their districts. Committees were set up to make preliminary surveys and to collect all possible information about the areas in question.

The case for Saanichton Bay is that it is well sheltered from all but the northeast winds. It has good approaches both from north and south, and is convenient to the main Sidney-Victoria highway. Some sawmilling is being done already, although the biggest operation, by Moore-Whittington, came to an end recently when the mill was destroyed by fire.

Among the difficulties are the fact that the best spot for wharfing or storing is off Indian Reservation, and that the area is not convenient to existing timber stands.

One Saanich Chamber member, however, suggested that in addition to its possibility as a logging industry centre, Saanichton Bay would be a first class terminal for the Anacortes and Steveston ferry services. The latter is at present out of operation and the former in some doubt owing to the bad condition of the pier facilities at Sidney. A pier at Saanichton might bring the services back into full commission, he declared.

Attraction of Sooke

Sooke Harbor, however, looks the more attractive proposition. There is ample depth of water in its inner harbor and plenty of suitable land for development. In addition it is flanked on two sides by the C.N.R. track.

Before Sooke could be developed, however, as a port for deep-sea-going vessels, considerable improvement would have to be made at the approach.

The narrow channel past the Whiffin Spit is too shallow for safety and three rocks just off the end of the Spit would have to be blasted clear. The approach and a large part of the outer harbor would require dredging.

Captain Frank Gray and other nautical members of the Sooke Chamber of Commerce, however, are convinced that the job of making the approach suitable to all kinds of traffic would be a practical economic possibility.

Sooke had the advantage of being near existing timber, and the suggestion was made when Mearns and his Industrial Bureau visited the chamber Friday night that the spoil from the outer harbor could be filled on the inner side of Whiffin Spit to provide a foundation for a deep sea wharf.

Need for Action

This column does not pose any expert opinion on the possibility of these Saanichton and Sooke ideas, but it stands firmly behind Bill Mearns in his general policy of finding some method of relieving present Victoria Harbor congestion, and enticing new industry to the district.

Unless action is taken it is obvious that Victoria and the south end of the Island is going to be at the wrong end for industrial development. Only this week so eminent an authority as Captain O. J. Williams of the B.C. Coast Service declared in effect that Nanaimo was to be henceforth considered as the commercial centre of the Island.

None will object to the development of the north, but just as clearly the south, with its population of over 100,000, must fight against being dead-ended.

Iron Men Expand

Interesting news of the Island's iron situation is that the Argonaut Co. is extending its operations at Quinsam Lake to the property leased from Canadian Collieries.

The present operations are taking place on E. & N. property and that railroad is receiving the royalty on the iron ore which is being shipped out of Campbell River to Japan.

The new operation at Iron River will give Canadian Collieries a share of the royalties.

Canadian Collieries are also exploring an iron property on the west coast of Vancouver Island north of Zeballos and diamond drilling is reported to have revealed some 250,000 tons of ore.

The Argonaut Company, which is a subsidiary of the all-U.S. Utah Construction Co., states its objective is to ship from 80,000 to 100,000 tons of iron ore monthly from Campbell River. It managed to ship 60,000 tons in October, but since then the shipments have been lower following deterioration of road conditions and plant adjustment.

Oils in a Hurry

Anticipation of a fairly early, and favorable, decision by the Alberta government commission to allow the export of natural gas made western oils the feature of the stock exchanges during the past wek.

The enthusiasm was spurred by new discoveries, including one by Scurry Oil, while news of a bigger gasser in Saskatchewan by Husky Oil helped the situation.

The result was that the Toronto western oil index has jumped during the week by 4.40 points to an all-time record high of 129.51.

The enthusiasm was unchecked, and some stocks showed big price increases during the period. The most extraordinary advance was in Scurry Oil which jumped to 2.75. This compared with 1.65 the previous Saturday.

Others on the up and up were Del Rio 2.20, up 30 cents; Central Leduc 2.90, up 30 cents; Calmont 1.95, up 40 cents; Royal Canadian 29 cents, up 8 cents, and Hargal 16½ cents, up 4 cents.

The senior oils, and most other sections of the stock markets were quiet and mostly slightly lower over the week.

Foreign Lead Prices Down to U.S. Level

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP).—Declining foreign lead prices finally got down to the United States ceiling level of 19 cents a pound last week.

Sales to American consumers, who formally obtain a large part of their lead from foreign sources, were reported for the first time since the import ceiling was imposed last October.

Foreign copper was being offered at around 46 cents a pound, compared with 54 cents asked not so long ago—but the price has a long way to drop before copper-hungry U.S. consumers can bid for it at their import ceiling of 27½ cents.

United States defence production chief Manly Fleischmann announced this week that increasing military needs for steel, copper and aluminum will force cutbacks in production of automobiles, homes, household goods, railroad equipment, pipelines and non-essential machinery during the second quarter.

He also disclosed that many metal users won't be able to obtain all of the supplies promised them for this quarter until April or later because allotments exceeded actual supplies. More than 20 per cent of the aluminum allotted for first-quarter delivery will have to be carried over until the second quarter, and about 15 per cent of the brass mill products.

Major metals prices:

Copper—24.5 cents a pound, delivered. Foreign, 27.5 cents, New York.

Lead—19 cents a pound, New York; 18.80 cents, St. Louis.

Zinc—19.5 cents a pound, east St. Louis; 20.286 cents, New York.

Aluminum—19 cents a pound, ingots, shipping point. Pigs, 18 cents.

Nickel—56.5 cents a pound, electrolytic cathodes, Port Colborne, Ontario, U.S. duty included.

Silver—88 cents an ounce, New York; 77 pence, London.

Tin—$1.03 a pound, New York.

Calumet Profit Set $1,088,969

MONTREAL, Jan. 12 (CP).—New Calumet Mines, Ltd., had net profit for the year ended Sept. 30 of $1,088,969, or 31 cents a share, compared with $851,196, or 24.3 cents a share, in the preceding year.

Net operating profit was $1,598,029 compared with $1,086,939, and provision for income taxes was $519,000 compared with $265,000.

Current assets were $1,043,568 and current liabilities $456,003, indicating working capital of $587,565, down $436,508.

Dividends paid were $1,207,467, and expenditures on building, machinery and equipment $239,425.

The company has a producing zinc-led-silver-gold property on Calumet Island in the Ottawa River in Pontiac County, Que.

Drammen, a Norwegian seaport near Oslo, has a large export trade in timber floated down from the uplands forests.

HOUSE No. 766-7

Hidden behind a low embankment is this modern cottage. Its snug, secluded sit makes huge windows a special treat. There's no lack of privacy so often associated with modern designing. The view from either the living room or dining room is of trees et garden.

Although it would appear the house is built entirely of frame, the walls are of block, covered by clapboard. Partitions too are of block, and all walls are furred and plastered on the inside. There is no basement. Pipes for the radiant heating system are encased in the concrete slab floor. House, with garage, contains approximately 21,800 cubic feet.

Pointers on Cleaning Walls

Special care must be taken when cleaning walls in order not to harm the finish. Each type of wall finish requires different treatment. Here are some suggestions for cleaning a variety of different surfaces:

To Clean Dull-Painted Walls

1. Always dust the walls with a wall brush or broom covered with a soft cloth. Use light overlapping strokes; heavy ones will rub the dirt "in" rather than "out." Change the cloth when necessary.

2. Painted walls may be washed with a cloth wrung out of light suds. (Never use strong-suds water.) Rinse with a cloth wrung out of clear water and wipe with a dry cloth.

3. Special precautions — Clean a small place at a time. Use an up and down motion and be sure each stroke overlaps the last and leaves no streaks. Use very little water. Yellow soap, soda or washing powder may change the colour of paint. Any good soap or cleanser may be used. Change water and cloth frequently.

To Clean Walls That Are Finished With Enameled Paints

1. Enameled paints are dulled by soap. Walls that are finished with them should be cleaned with a cloth wrung out of hot water.

2. Remove spots with a fine scourer such as whiting, lightly applied.

To Clean Calcimined Walls

1. Calcimined walls are very difficult to clean because the calcimine comes off easily. Refinishing is usually necessary.

2. Some spots may be removed by rubbing with art gum or putty eraser, but, unless the erasing is carefully done, it is apt to leave spots or rings.

To Clean Papered Walls

1. Papered walls are somewhat difficult to clean since hard rubbing blurs the pattern. Use a soft, clean cloth or soft brush, and rub with an even stroke and very little pressure.

2. Most commercial cleaners and powders streak the paper unless they are carefully used. Putty erasers or cleaners (which can be purchased) and prepared starch or dough cleaners may be used, but require much time and energy and results are not always satisfactory.

3. Spotted or sooty paper may be cleaned by using soft stale bread. Cut away the crust and use the inside of the loaf for cleaning, cutting off the soiled section as work progresses.

4. Grease spots are difficult to remove, but may sometimes be removed by coating them with a thick layer of fuller's earth, magnesium, or even talcum. Let the coating remain for 24 hours and lightly brush it off. Repeat application if necessary.

To Clean Fabric Wall Covering

1. Heavy paper, burlap, tapestries, and brocades hold dust. Therefore, to clean them, thorough and frequent brushing is necessary. The use of a vacuum cleaner is desirable. Gasoline and other cleaners are somewhat difficult to use successfully.

2. Oilcloth coverings may be washed with mild soapy water, and rinsed with clean water.

To Clean Tile

1. Glazed tile when used on the wall is easily cleaned with warm water and mild soap.

Japan to Have Naval Force Of 300 Ships

TOKYO, Jan. 12 (NANA Kemnews)—Plans for the rebirth of the Imperial Japanese Navy have been officially approved here just a decade after Pearl Harbor. The first goal in the naval program will be a force of up to 300 destroyer-class vessels. Some will be built in Japanese shipyards, and some, it is hoped, will be borrowed or leased from the United States.

An amount of $420,000,000 was set aside in the 1952 budget at recent meetings "for strengthening Japan's defensive power."

There also are reports that the Japanese air force will return in the shape of light fighter planes, piloted by the Japanese as an adjunct to the "national police reserve," which already is equipped with mortars, machine guns, bazookas, and flame throwers.

No official details of the cabinet meetings have been released, but it is recalled that Japanese military experts suggested when the peace treaty was being drafted that Japan's first rearmament goal should be an army of 150,000 men in 12 divisions, 300 fighter planes, and 300 destroyers.

France Honors Dead General

PARIS, Jan. 12 (AP) — The French government today gave the posthumous title of Marshal of France, the country's highest honor, to old soldier Jean De Lattre De Tassigny.

The 61-year-old general, commander-in-chief and high commissioner to Indo-China, died Friday.

The French cabinet held a solemn meeting this morning and arranged to give him a full military funeral Wednesday.

The funeral will be in Les Invalides, where France's great soldiers traditionally are given their last honors.

After the funeral, a cortege will drive with the body of Gen. De Lattre to the little village of Mouilleron Enpareds, his birthplace, where he is to be buried.

Labor Party Establishes Vote Crusade

LONDON, Jan. 12 (NANA Kemnews)—The British Labor Party's "Great Socialist Crusade" is under way at party headquarters.

It is to consist of meetings and conferences everywhere, and door-to-door canvassing, and will reach its climax just before the local elections this year.

Morgan Phillips, general secretary of the party, pointed out that the party's record vote at the last election—48.7 per cent of the total votes cast—represents only 40 per cent of the total electorate, and that it is to the remaining 60 per cent, many of whom are, he said, trade-union members and their wives, that the party must look for future victories.

POLICY REVISION

Early this year, the Labor Party will get down to policy revision. There is general agreement in the party hierarchy that it has reached the limit of its impetus on past policy, and that present problems require a new Socialist approach, but it will not be easy to heal the existing schism on policy.

Aneurin Bevan and his supporters firmly believe that events will justify them, and confound the right wing's Clement Attlee, Herbert Morrison, Hugh Gaitskell, and others.

But they do not expect or desire a spectacular climbdown. They hope to let time and experience swing the party and its leaders unostentatiously around to their point of view.

Athletics Given 18-Day Deadline To Find Funds

By JIM TANG

SEATTLE, Jan. 12—Victoria is not out of the W.I.L. yet, but there are only 18 days left to find an answer to the serious financial situation which makes it extremely doubtful if it will have professional baseball this year.

Meeting here today at a special session called to discuss the Victoria situation, league officials, many of whom came in the mood to take immediate action to find a replacement if Victoria hadn't already found a way out of its financial morass, finally agreed to give the club until February 1.

That left no doubt of the desire of W.I.L. owners to keep Victoria in the league if at all possible. It is high time something was done about finalizing a schedule and postponing it for an additional 18 days is really bending over backwards.

The problem has been there since before the end of last season and there was keen disappointment and many unofficial recriminations that something had not been accomplished before now.

ENGENE SEEKS ENTRY

Club president Johnny Johnson and business manager Reg Patterson represented Victoria and won their fight for more time although Art Hadler, owner of the Eugene club of the Far West League, was present and willing to listen to any reasonable proposition at becoming the eighth club.

Hadler was left high and dry with an almost new park when his league decided to suspend operations for a season and is anxious not to have to sit this one out.

He had a working agreement with the Pittsburgh Pirates last season and Eugene is a better substitute for Victoria than the W.I.L. could possibly have had before the Far West decided to pass up 1952.

SEEK FORCEFUL ACTION

Following the two lengthy conferences which resulted in the stay of execution, club owners gathered at impromptu sessions to discuss the situation and try to find some manner in which it could be saved.

There was a general feeling that the league should step in and take some forceful action and belief that the Victoria delegates had no concrete and workable plan and that they were, perhaps, stalling for time in the hope that the problem would solve itself.

It was unanimously agreed that the only chance unless a buyer was unexpectedly found would be a complete reorganization of the Victoria Baseball and Athletic Co. Ltd. and that if this was effected, it could be possible that Victorians and Victoria organizations might rally behind a drive "to save baseball for Victoria."

Plans are in the formative stage at the moment and it is entirely possible that the league will back and probably instigate action to see what can be done.

PORTLAND WILL HELP

Hopes that Portland Beavers, through George Norgan, might take over were dispelled by Bill Mulligan, general manager of the Beavers, although there was some hope that Portland would go a long way if Victorians would get behind a drive.

Mulligan stated that his club would help in every possible manner. He promised a continuance of the working agreement and stated that Mr. Norgan was willing to leave the sum, said to be $10,000, which he put up to help out last season.

However, there was no chance that Portland or Norgan would take over on the understanding that they would have to clear up the club indebtedness, estimated at more than $50,000.

SLATE MUST BE CLEAR

And that's where the matter stands now. There are 18 days left before league action will be taken. Failure to find a way out would mean that the league will take over the franchise and place it where seen fit and that Victoria would be left without baseball but, unfortunately, not the bills it has run up during the past three seasons.

Failure to keep baseball this season might mean the finish of Victoria as a professional baseball centre for some time. At least the slate will have to be clear before anyone could take over the franchise in another year.

Eugene is the best bet if Victoria is out, but there is still the possibility, although it is a faint one, that Tacoma might step back in under new management. In any event, there will be an eighth city. Lewiston is set and needs only a field manager and a name. The club will work with San Diego and delegates were optimistic.

Harlem Tickles Fans With Ball Wizardry

By IAN GLENDAY

Harlem Clowns came to the Victoria High gym last night, kept a sellout house of spectators in an uproar with their basketball antics, and threw in enough serious basketball to walk off the floor with a thrilling 48-41 win over Victoria Individuals.

It wasn't the score that counted so much, but the way in which the Clowns attained it. Showing an effortless grace, the colored stars proved they could do anything they wanted with a basketball in fact, anything that could be done with a basketball. Content to let the ball do the work for them, they showed they were complete masters of the ball—like a yo-yo on a string.

Always keeping up a steady stream of chatter, the colored boys seemed to be enjoying the game as much as the crowd, and many of the fans left the gym still shaking their heads in amazement over the wizardry of the visitors.

The crowd was encouraging, too. It resembled some of the mobs that used to rock the gym in the golden era of the Dominoes when Victoria was the basketball centre of Canada.

Individuals, making their first start under new coach Doug Peden, turned in an improved performance, a hopeful sign that once again, Victoria will have a hoopla representative that will go all the way to the Canadian title.

MARGIN INCREASED

The visitors held a 15-10 lead at the quarter and increased the margin to 32-16 at the half. After spotting the Cleaners a three-point margin in the third frame they started the real shennanigans in the final period.

Clowns switched to baseball and football. Jackie White tried a drop kick from the court and then disappeared into the gallery while the Clowns played with four men. White was unequalled in the art of dribbling; Mitchell Lancaster, the giant centre who led all scorers with 21 points, showed a beautiful hook shot; Bill Mobley, the set-shot artist, climaxed the evening by spinning the ball on his fingertips for about 30 seconds; Edward Carter, "the schoolboy wonder," amazed the crowd with his jump shots and Wally Edwards, the veteran guard, was a stand-out on defense.

In the preliminary, St. Louis College nipped Tillicums 20-19.

Lineups:

St. Louis College: Pederson 5, Schere 2, Law 8, Barilko 2, Kirk 2, O'Hare 1, O'Connell, McDonald, McCall, Parson—20.

Victoria Cougars enabled the New Westminster Royals to protect their slim two-point lead in the Pacific Coast Hockey League by absorbing a 9-4 trouncing from the Royals before 3,500 fans at New Westminster last night.

Second-place Saskatoon Quakers kept pace with the loop leaders by downing Calgary Stampeders, 5-3, at Calgary.

Vancouver Canucks defeated Tacoma Rockets, 4-2, at Tacoma.

EIGHT IN ROW

Royals rolled over Cougars with eight straight goals after Victoria made a fast-start scoring twice before the game was seven minutes old. Bob Love scored two goals for Royals, the 100th and 101st of his professional career. Linemate Ollie Dorohoy also scored twice.

Victoria opened the scoring at 5:54 of the first, Jack McIntyre sliding one in on Luce in Dechenes short side. Against the run of play, Reg Abbot backhanded a loose puck past a surprised Dechene less than a minute later as Royals were forming an attack.

Cougars were adequate offensively but defensively they left much to be desired. Only playing coach Roger Leger and Bernie Strongman looked good. Leon Bouchard was strong in spots, but wandered from his position, to the dismay of goalie Jerry Cotnoir, who wasn't to blame for the one-side score.

DOROHOY PADS LEAD

Victoria's Eddie Dorohoy stretched his lead in the individual scoring race to two points with a goal and two assists. He now has 51 points. Alex Kaleta picked up a similar number of points for Saskatoon to take over the runner-up spot. Joe Bell fell back as Seattle was idle.

Some top notch net-minding by goalie Red McAtee made all the difference in the Vancouver-Tacoma game. The nimble McAtee kicked out 37 shots, 18 of them in the first period.

Midway through the Saskatoon-Calgary contest the clubs engaged in a near Donnybrook. Bill Heindl and Howie Milford of Quakers and Bill Schvetz and George Agar of Calgary were given major penalties for fighting. Agar also drew a minor penalty at the same time along with Neil Strain of Saskatoon.

United Loses To Vic West In Exhibition

Victoria West, league leaders in the Victoria and District Football Association, defeated Victoria United of the Coast League, 2-1, in an exhibition soccer game at Naden yesterday afternoon.

George Brown and Dick Watson scored for the Wests while Don McGee supplied United's singleton.

United took a 1-0 lead during the first half on McGee's goal and elected to try out several German and Austrian immigrants after the intermission, also substituting Lorne Ettinger in goal for Bill McAllister.

An Austrian halfback looked extremely good and will receive further tryouts with the team.

United fullback Bill Hope was forced to leave the game after 20 minutes after suffering a hard kick on the knee.

Scots Tie Meres

PAISLEY, Scotland, Jan. 12 (CP)—Edmonton Mercuries tonight salvaged a 6-6 tie with the reinforced Paisley Pirates to retain their undefeated record in their pre-world-championship Scottish hockey tour.

The Meres were leading 1-0 at the end of the first period, trailed 5-1 at the end of the second but came back to tie the game in the third. The Scottish team was reinforced by Canadian players playing in England.

Fighting Fight Manager May Face Assault Charge

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP).—Witnesses testified today that fight manager Tommy Ryan had assaulted referee Ray Miller and matchmaker Al Weill Friday night and there was a strong possibility that the district attorney might take action soon against the manager.

Ryan already is under suspension for his ring attack on the referee in Madison Square Garden and chairman Bob Christenberry of the State Athletic Commission has vowed the Ryan's manager's license will be revoked. That probably will take place next Friday.

The commission held a preliminary hearing today on the wild aftermath to the Ernie Durando-Rocky Castellani middleweight scrap and then adjourned until Friday.

As soon as the hearing was over, Manuel Robbins, counsel for the commission, hurried over to the district attorney's office to make a full report.

Ryan is the manager of Castellani, who was stopped in 2.04 of the seventh round of last night's 10-rounder.

POSSIBLE FRACTURES

Dr. Vincent A. Nardiello, commission physician, testified Weill had suffered severe face cuts and possible fractures of the jaw and three ribs.

Christenberry, Robbins and Commissioner C. B. Powell devoted most of their questioning to prove that Miller and Weill had been attacked by Ryan.

Dr. Nardiello said the referee was justified in halting the bout and said that "if Castellani had been hit again he could have suffered great injury."

Ryan and his attorney, Arnold Cohen, showed up 15 minutes after the hearing started.

Cohen protested that his client had not had enough time to prepare his case and call witnesses.

Castellani testified briefly. Christenberry directed Markson to pay the fighter two-third of the $6,941 purse, or about $4,628. Ryan's third was withheld.

Crosby Meet Abbreviated By Weather

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif., Jan. 12 (AP)—Bing Crosby's $10,000 national pro-amateur golf tournament came to a waterlogged halt early today but it will get under way again Sunday, weather permitting in an abbreviated finals.

The forecast was for diminishing showers.

An all-night rain caused cancellation of the second round. The Monterey Peninsula Country Club course was ruled unplayable.

The tournament will be decided on a 36-hole basis; instead of the customary 54 holes.

The final round will be played Sunday over the famed Pebble Beach course.

Duncan	0	1	1	3	5	1
Alcos	0	3	0	7	9	0

Next game, today: Duncan vs. Victoria City, Lower Beacon Hill, 2.30 p.m.

After four unsuccessful bids in the second half of the Victoria and District Football Association, Heaneys have finally broken into the victory column.

The Cartagemen scored a 1-0 victory over Alcos at Lower Beacon Hill Park yesterday.

Both clubs displayed the same fault. After working the ball into scoring position, the teams would either shoot wide of the net or straight to the goalkeeper. It took the winners 35 minutes into the second half to notch the only goal.

The game marked the return of veteran Charlie Hall to the district league. The ex-Navy player showed that he hasn't forgotten any of his football and came up with one of the game's better performances. He also figured in Cartagemen's winning marker. Arnie Ferguson deflected Hall's pass through a maze of players and into the left hand corner of the net.

Sharing the spotlight with Hall was Alcos' goalie Doug Day. The lanky ex-centre-half turned back many thrusts and had absolutely no chance on the one shot that beat him.

Line-ups follow:

Heaneys—Bill Henderson; Bob Caron, Dave Burt, Alec Walker, Stan Wiseman, Frank Greaves, Charlie Hall, Arnie Ferguson, Mel Scott, John Schauber, Ralph Shandler. Spares—Harold Rennie, Dave Wright.

Alcos—Doug Day; Ted Dover-Masters, Norm Blanchard, Mort Thorsell, Al Jaggers, Gordie Hobson, Don Wilkinson, Jock Motherwell, Jeff Wilkinson, Jack Thompson, Leo Kozak. Spare—Fred Merriman.

Coaching Schools Aid In Improving Soccer

Soccer on a par with that played in other countries is the ultimate goal of the Dominion Football Association.

In an attempt to attain this goal, the D.F.A. is sponsoring soccer schools for coaches and promotion of junior and juvenile games across Canada. The program is expected to begin showing results within five years.

Victoria's part in the program will start in about 10 days when George Kulai and Ed Ball hold the first classes of a six-week school. Kulai has been named head coach and will instruct on the fundamentals of soccer, and Ball will explain the laws and rules of the game.

Two-hour classes will be held weekly, with each class divided into two sections. The first hour and a quarter each week will be devoted to fundamentals, with the remaining period used to explain the rules.

Oral and written examinations will be given at the conclusion of the course with successful students receiving certificates enabling them to become graded qualified coaches in any part of Canada.

Stress will be placed on coaching of minor players, including proper dress, picking of players and captains, and basic fundamentals.

A complete syllabus and other details of the school will be announced within a few days.

The square, hilly little city of Ladysmith is out shopping for an industry.

Far from "coming apart at the seams" as predicted when its coal mines ended, Ladysmith is [illegible] up with a new city hall and a modern high school in hopes of attracting one more industry to live in the city.

It doesn't have to be a big industry. One employing 60 to 70 men would do. "That would take off the rough edges of the city's economy," Mayor Len Ryan says.

Ladysmith is a loggers' town at present, and when snow or the heat of summer [illegible] woods [illegible] out of work, almost everyone suffers. "There are only seven or eight months of logging work," Mayor Ryan says, "and uneven distribution of money is hard on the businessmen."

There is an excellent site for another industry on the harbor below the city. An assembly wharf and storage area can be built on the foundation of tons of ore dumpings remaining from the days when Ladysmith was one of the Island's top coal centres.

A breakwater and fishermen's wharf could also be built on the ore slag. An application for such a [illegible] fishermen has been "on the books" at Ottawa for some years.

The harbor can accommodate large freighters, but offers no protection against gales sweeping in from the south.

Winter winds that bring rain to the little city are harder on businessmen than on their steep streets, City Clerk R. S. Woods says. "Too heavy may be snow a few hundred feet higher up behind the town, and out come the loggers."

Streets are on such a steep [illegible] that rain on the main street might be snow [illegible] blocks away at the top of the town.

One of the squarest towns on the Island, Ladysmith is only [illegible] blocks long and six deep [illegible]

[illegible] as a shipping [illegible] Dunsmuir [illegible] at one time [illegible] the city [illegible] the populations of other nearby settlements, including Nanaimo, as thousands of tons of coal passed over the wharf [illegible] Ladysmith [illegible] of the world. But the mines did not live up to expectations.

By 1928 it was evident that Ladysmith was finished as a coal shipping port, and although [illegible] still operating in 1931, the rotting and ragged remains of the great coal wharf in the harbor are the only monument to the old days.

The quiet atmosphere of the rugged little city gives little hint that there exists a monthly payroll of nearly $[illegible].

And Ladysmith is still growing. Harvey E. Wallace, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce there, says: "The growth is slow and not spectacular, but it is fairly sound."

Houses can still be bought at reasonable prices in Ladysmith, according to the bank manager, and a good many retired people are moving there.

Growth is also evident in the new junior-senior high school costing $[illegible] which was open some time this month.

Another sure sign of the city's growth is the new city hall, a neat, modern building below the main street, [illegible] halted by a carpenters' strike.

Ladysmith residents will probably turn out to a man to watch the city hall books and records moving down to the new building. After all, they chuckle, they will actually be able to see their taxes going "down."

DID A MAN LIVE TO BE 152 YEARS OLD?

THE English often resort to understatement, but in the case of Thomas Parr, they let themselves go, and on a plaque (in the Parish Church of Wollaston, Shropshire) which commemorates his life of more than a century and a half, term him: "The Old, Old, Very Old Man." Parr was born in Shropshire in the fifteenth century (1483) and died in the seventeenth century (1635). His abnormally long life spanned the reigns of ten kings and queens of England! He was buried in Westminster Abbey, having died in London, when he was taken there to visit King Charles I. If only he had kept a diary!

Union Urges Profits Used To Pay Boost

WASHINGTON, Jan 12 (AP) The United Steel Workers' Union (CIO) today said the U.S. Steel Corporation could raise wages of its 300,000 workers 30 cents an hour and pay the cost out of its "excess profits."

Otis Brubaker, the union's research director, said the same picture holds true in other large companies in the steel industry.

Brubaker, closing preliminary union testimony to a six-man panel hearing the big labor-management dispute for the wage stabilization board, said the union has clearly shown that hourly wage adjustments totaling 34 cents are approvable under wage board regulations.

The union is asking 12½ cents an hour plus other benefits.

Norwegian Hero Won Tragic Race For South Pole Just 40 Years Ago

(Editor's Note—The lure of the ice-mantle in the desolate vastness of the Antarctic are well known to the writer of the following story. Early in 1947 Allen Blakeslee spent five weeks in Little America with the second Byrd expedition to the South Pole.)

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 (AP)—Five men trudge south, always south, into a pitiless cold wind blowing from the bottom of the world.

The South Pole lies near, after 73 days of marching on ski and foot.

It is a day 40 years ago in a famous race between two explorers to reach the South Pole first, a day in one of history's greatest dramas. They are seeing things man never saw before, solving some mysteries of the last great unknown continent.

Behind them the five men haul a sledge, laden with food, fuel, and tent for their only shelter.

Capt. Robert Scott and his four companions are hoping to be the first to claim the pole in England's name.

But a question gnaws them. Where is Roald Amundsen?

It was Amundsen who made this a race. Amundsen came with dogs to pull his sledges.

Scott planned a many-sided scientific expedition and discovery of the pole. Amundsen made the pole his main goal.

350 MILES APART

Both reached Antarctica in the summer of 1911. Their camps lay 350 miles apart. The pole was nearly 900 miles away.

Scott started out Nov. 1, 1911. On Jan. 17 the wonder over Amundsen's whereabouts ceased. They saw a flag left by the Norwegians.

Amundsen reached the pole in 55 days on Dec. 14, 1911, 34 days before Scott, and started home Dec. 18 with two sledges and 11 dogs.

Amundsen, 41, made it home, 870 miles, in only 38 days with food to spare. He arrived Jan. 25.

With him he brought rocks from the glacier-ringed mountains, new knowledge of the fabulous Ross ice barrier, of mountains thrusting 15,000 feet high, of explorations of King Edward VII Land, visited by other members of his small party.

Scott, 43, came to the pole Jan. 17, 1912.

"It is a terrible disappointment," his diary tells. "This is an awful place and terrible enough for us to have labored to it without the reward of priority . . . now for the run home and a desperate struggle. I wonder if we can make it . . ."

START HOME

Jan. 19, they start home.

Jan. 23, Petty Officer Edgar Evans, 37, huskiest man of the five, suffers frequent frostbites.

Jan. 31, Evans' fingernails start to come off. Dr. Edward A. Wilson, 39, Physician and zoologist, has snowblindness.

Feb. 4, Capt. L. E. G. Oates, 32, British Army officer, finds his toes blackening.

Down the glacier they come. Evans, weakening rapidly, dies in his sleep Feb. 17.

Oates' feet grow worse. March 6, he cannot pull any more. For 10 more days, the four men push on.

March 17, they pitch their tent. Oates knows he is compromising the chances of three other men. Oates walks out into a blizzard. They never find his body.

Three men walk on for two more days, then put up tent.

Only 11 miles ahead lies One-Ton Depot, with food and fuel for another week's march. They now have food for only two [illegible]

AMPUTATION LOOMS

The blizzard begins again. Scott's foot is so badly gone from frostbite he knows he will have it amputated, if he lives. The plan is made. Dr. Wilson and Lieut. Henry Bowers, 28, will try to reach One-Ton Depot and come back for Scott. They will start when the blizzard stops. . . .

The blizzard rages on for nine days. . . .

The last entry in Scott's diary is March 29, five months after the start: "I do not think we can hope for better things now. We shall stick it out to the end, but we are getting weaker, of course, and the end cannot be far. . . ."

Nine months later, after the dark Antarctic winter, a search party found the snow-covered tent, marked by skis and the bamboo mast of the sledge, visible above the snows. Three men lay in frozen death, 11 miles from a depot, 177 miles from the safety of their base.

Salary Talks Set Back At Duncan

DUNCAN, Jan. 12—Settlement of teachers' salaries in School District 65 (Cowichan) was thrown back into the "under negotiation" stage Friday night when a brief was presented by R. Swailes, chairman of the negotiating committee, and J. G. Jickling, asking the board to include one-year probationary teachers in the new salary schedule giving other classes of teachers a 16-per-cent increase.

On Wednesday night the board and Mr. Swailes had agreed on the 16-per-cent increase for all teachers except the one-year probationers, who would, however, receive the regular annual increments. At that time Mr. Swailes gave it as his opinion the teachers would accept the compromise offer, but also said "the probationers won't be happy."

The probationers claim denying them the increase would be discrimination because they do the same work as other teachers. This discrimination, they said, would discourage teachers from applying for positions in Duncan. They termed "unfair" the form of contract they are required to sign, which bars them from salary negotiations. They give as their last reason against refusal of the board, the cost, which they estimate would be "only $12,000, just half of which has to be raised by the ratepayers of the district."

NO ALTERNATIVE

The board remained firm, with various members holding that the board had no alternative but to live up to the contract. "If there was a reduction being negotiated," argued Trustee P. R. Leighton, "the probationers would seek to hold the board to its contract and not apply the reduction to them."

Arbitration was again spoken of, despite the assurance by Mr. Swailes that he thought the matter would be settled amicably.

The board rejected the suggestion of Dr. F. T. Fairey, deputy minister of education, that it draw a name from the hat to select a ninth trustee. "We will wait to see what the municipality of North Cowichan does about the question, which has been referred to the municipal clerk," said chairman W. J. Long.

Saanichton Tests Favor Bulb Watering System

Experiments on the forcing of irrigated daffodils at the Dominion Experimental Station, Saanichton, continue to lend support to the case for watering spring-flowering bulbs in the Saanich area.

According to a seasonal report, about four to six inches of water in one-inch applications seems to be satisfactory for King Alfred daffodils. Applications later than the first or second week in July may retard maturity and tend to slow greenhouse flowering if bulbs are forced extra early.

Definite advantages are obtained, however, from irrigated bulbs, the gain being more grade 1 and total saleable flowers.

Also included in the seasonal report is an article on poultry which states that tests have proved that birds with poor eye condition have been poor layers and showed increased mortality.

The present trend in experiments of this nature shows it may be possible to breed out the lethal eye condition in poultry raising.

Revised Soviet Stand Given Cool Reception

PARIS, Jan. 12 (INS)—Russia revised its stand on the A-bomb today by agreeing to "continuing" inspection and controls in the hope the West will agree to ban use of the weapon unconditionally. But the West gave the proposal a cool reception.

Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky told the United Nations political committee the two things an A-bomb ban and controls would have to go into effect simultaneously, rather than banning the bomb first and starting controls later as Russia has urged until now.

Western sources, after preliminary study, called the Soviet proposal "an old product in a new package."

The Soviet proposal was part of a multiple plan calling for an immediate end to the war in Korea, among other things.

It came after the General Assembly gave final approval to the collective measures plan to bar aggression and the scheme to hold prediodic Security Council meetings to tackle cold war problems.

Vishinsky came up with the revised Soviet proposal on A-bomb controls during a two-hour speech in which he called on the Assembly to ban the bomb and arrange controls in one pact, instead of two separate pacts asked previously.

The West has advocated a step-by-step system of controls leading to outlawing of the bomb.

VISHINSKY NOT CLEAR

Vishinsky, however, was not clear as to the kind of inspection he had in mind. He stressed that such inspection "is not entitled to interfere in the domestic affairs of states."

Vishinsky's proposal created a stir in the Assembly when it was first made, but after an initial examination of the idea by the Western delegates, they decided it was not the "concession" Vishinsky tried to make it appear.

They agreed, however, to study it further, and suggested that Vishinsky send it along to the 12-nation disarmament commission.

Vishinsky proposed that a convention to outlaw the A-bomb be concluded no later than next June 1.

Bristol Hails New Design As World's Best Airliner

LONDON, Jan. (NANA-Kemnews)—After three years of experiments, successes and setbacks, engineers of one of Britain's leading aircraft companies are confident that they have produced the finest long-range passenger plane in the world.

The new plane will have a range of 5,600 miles, a speed of 360 miles an hour, and will carry 100 passengers on short trips and 50 on longer distances.

Though the prototype has not yet been flown, British Overseas Airways Corporation has placed a first order for 25. It is hoped that the first flight will be made this summer, and that production will start next year.

The plane has been designed by the Bristol Aeroplane Company, and its name is Britannia. It will have four Proteus propeller turbines to give it a huge range with heavy loads.

HEAVY LOAD

Here's what it can do:

It will be able to carry a pay load of 25,000 pounds.

It will be able to cover any known aircraft route and still have ample fuel in reserve after even an Atlantic or Pacific crossing.

It will be fitted with a special four-wheel undercarriage enabling it to land on any runway, however small.

The workers have been told by their managing directors: "The Britannia shows signs of being the world-beater of this generation of transport aircraft."

The design has been the responsibility of A. E. Russell, the company's chief designer.

The first Comet jet liners will be delivered to British Overseas Airways shortly. The long-range version should make its first flight about a month later. There will be enough Comets by May to maintain a regular service between London and Johannesburg.

All the signs are that both versions will be profitable additions to the airline's fleet. The first is suitable for non-stop stages up to 1,750 miles, with full load. The second will carry the same load up to 2,250 miles, with full allowance for head winds and possible diversions.

The commissioning of the Comets will coincide with a marked improvement in the corporation's economic condition. Whereas losses were made in the first eight months of the last financial year, a profit has been made in the corresponding period of this year. There has been, in particular, a large improvement in South American business, an area in which the loss formerly ran at $5,600,000 a year.

There are 26 Comets on order. Of these, 14 are for British Overseas Airways, which probably will also order six of the long-range type. Two will go to Canadian Pacific Airlines, two to the Royal Canadian Air Force, and six to French airlines. Two have been delivered to the ministry of supply.

Money in U.S. Attracts Skiers

VANCOUVER, Jan. 12 (CP)—Scholarships from United States colleges are robbing the University of British Columbia of its best skiers.

Gar Robinson, 25-year-old coach of the eight-man U.B.C. ski team, said today that the system has cut the university's chances of excelling even in inter-college meets.

"We watch our skiers come up, and watch many of them leave. U.S. universities offer all the advantages financially, and for those who are interested strictly in skiing, it's a good deal."

Uncle Wiggily Story - - - By Howard Garis

Uncle Wiggily twinkled his pink nose and looked at Nurse Jane Fuzzy, his muskrat lady housekeeper. Then he looked out of the dining room window. The white flakes of the big snow storm were still coming down, blown this way and that way by a cold north wind.

"There is no use looking at me and no use twinkling your pink nose at me," said Nurse Jane. "I think you are very jolly, Mr. Longears. And your pink nose twinkles beautifully. But I am not going to unlock either the front door or the back door and let you out."

"Oh, dear me hum suz dud and a keyhole full of soap bubbles!" said the rabbit gentleman sadly. Once again he looked out at the storm.

"And there is no use in you looking at the swirling snow!" exclaimed Nurse Jane. "It is coming down so fast and flipsy flopsy like that I cannot let you go out in it."

"Not even to cut the Christmas tree on Santa Claus Hill?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"No, not even to cut the Christmas tree," said Nurse Jane. The muskrat lady housekeeper clicked together the keys of the front and back doors which she had just locked to keep Uncle Wiggily in.

"But Whitie, my polar bear friend, will be waiting for me on Santa Claus Hill," said Uncle Wiggily. "I told Whitie I would meet him on the hill. He is going to cut the Christmas tree down for me."

"Let Mr. Whitewash wait!" said Nurse Jane. "Being a polar bear snowstorms mean nothing to him. But they do to you. If you go out in the storm now you might catch cold. And if you have a cold you will not have a merry Christmas."

"That is very true," admitted Uncle Wiggily. "But even if I go out in the snowstorm to get our Christmas tree, I may not catch cold. I will take with me a thermos bottle of hot sassafras tea, Nurse Jane. That will stop me from catching cold. Please may I go out in the storm to Santa Claus Hill?"

"No! No, Uncle Wiggily, you may not!" said Nurse Jane decided-like and positive. "You must stay in the bungalow. Tomorrow will be plenty of time for you to go with Mr. Whitewash to cut the Christmas tree."

"Oh, dear me! I am so disappointed!"

"I am sorry," said Nurse Jane kindly. "But I cannot let you go out in this dreadful storm. Now go in the library, Uncle Wiggily, and look at television or listen to the radio or read a book. You are not going out." Once more Nurse Jane clicked together the keys of the back and front doors. Then she exclaimed:

"Here come the rabbit children! They are all excited about the storm. And they are happy because I told them they might stay home from Hollow Tree School. I telephoned the Lady Mouse Teacher and she said there would be no school today. Now please go in the library, Uncle Wiggily, while I give the children their breakfasts."

"Oh, all right," said Uncle Wiggily, not very happy-like. He watched Nurse Jane out of the corner of his left eye. He thought she might leave the door keys on the table. Then he could get them, open the front door and slip out before Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy could catch him. But the muskrat lady took the keys with her.

Uncle Wiggily looked at television in the library. He heard the merry shouts and laughter of his rabbit children as Nurse Jane gave them their breakfasts and told them they did not need to go to school.

"While Nurse Jane is busy feeding the children," said Uncle Wiggily to himself, "I will just slip out to the kitchen. Maybe she left the door keys there and I can find them."

Hopping out of a side library door, Uncle Wiggily began hunting in the kitchen for the keys. He found them in the sugar bowl. Quickly he unlocked the back kitchen door and hopped out into the storm. The wind blew harder. The snow came down thicker and faster.

"I hope I can find my way to Santa Claus Hill," said Uncle Wiggily as he struggled through the storm. He could see only a little way in front of him.

What is going to happen? I will tell you in the story tomorrow, if the television picture doesn't turn upside down so the cabbage has to stand on its head to look at it.

New French Horn Player "Top-Notch," Says Gruber

Wilhelm Gross, newly-arrived from Karlsruhe, Germany, looks like a Hollywood version of a jolly burgomeister.

On closer inspection he looks more like the twinkly-eyed merry musician of light opera who at any moment will bound to the top of the cafe table and [illegible] for the lovers dancing alone in the ballroom.

The second version is nearer the truth, for he is a musician, but his instrument is the French horn.

He is the second German musician of note to join the Victoria Symphony Orchestra within the last five months. The first was Hans Stelzner, who joined the orchestra in September.

Mr. Gross, who came here with his wife, arrived by the city Dec. 18 and will give his first performance with the local symphony tomorrow night in the Royal Theatre.

GRUBER DELIGHTED

Conductor Hans Gruber is delighted with his latest addition. He says Mr. Gross is a musician of similar calibre to Mr. Stelzner (who, he said, was one of the finest French horns he had ever heard); that "he is a first-class professional and absolutely top-notch."

"It speaks well for our immigration authorities that they are sending professional men of this type to Canada," Mr. Gruber added. "Unfortunately, while in Germany these men were able to live well simply through their musicianship and had a high standing in the community, over here they must work at other jobs in order to exist," he said.

Mr. Gross, who says he likes best of all to play the music of Wagner, Beethoven and Mozart, has been a professional musician for 20 years and was a permanent member of the Karlsruhe combined symphony and opera orchestra. He was also regularly featured on the radio in Karlsruhe. As well, he taught the French horn to a number of promising students.

EXPRESSES THANKS

"Please tell people," the musician said through interpreter Gruber, "that I am very happy to be here and have only gratitude and admiration for the helpfulness I found from everyone on the station."

For his first concert here, Mr. Gross will share the spotlight with the three other French horn players—Hans Stelzner, George Swailes and R. E. Grant—in performing Brahms' Second Symphony. The horns take the first part of this work alone.

Denise Mara, noted Victoria pianist, will be the soloist for the orchestra's fourth concert of the season.

[illegible] with the symphony she will play Mendelssohn's Piano Concerto in G Minor.

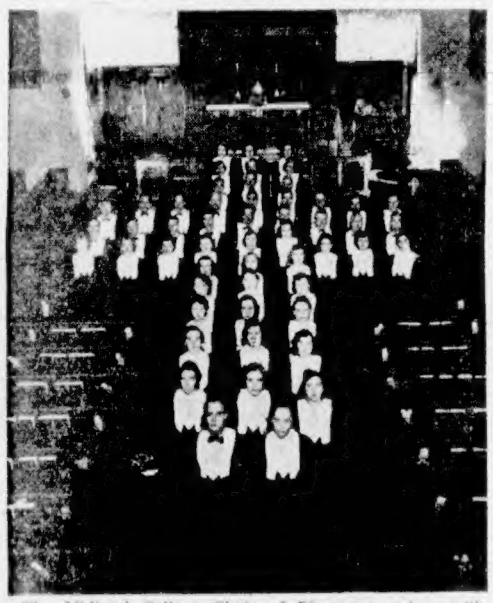
Choir of 50 to Present Concert



The Midland College Choir of 50 young voices will perform in Victoria at 8 p.m. Jan. 24, in Metropolitan United Church, under sponsorship of Grace Lutheran Church. The choir, directed by S. Veil of Fremont, Neb., sings without instrumental accompaniment. The group's repertoire includes Bach, Schubert, Brahms and Beethoven as well as religious anthems and folk songs. Admission to the concert is free.

Few Tickets Still Left For Lecture

Only about 50 tickets are still available for the lecture scheduled Jan. 18 at Victoria College, to be given by ballet choreographer and artist Elza Stewart-Galafres.

Mrs. Stewart-Galafres, who has been in this country only four years, has three important ballets to her credit, and is highly qualified to speak on the art's history and development. She will also use slides of her own works and musical accompaniments as illustration.

Her full-length ballet, The Holy Torch, was a success throughout Europe. It was something of an innovation in the field, as for the first time ballet was scored in the same manner as in opera.

Her late husband, Ernst von Dohnanyi, was a conductor and composer of note and Mrs. Galafres is at present engaged in writing his biography. Her lecture is jointly sponsored by the Victoria College Evening Division and the Arts Centre.

More Than 60 Visit Arts Centre

More than 60 persons visited the Arts Centre, Moss Street last Sunday, a gallery spokesman said yesterday.

"This is extremely gratifying," he said. "We feel the public is beginning to look on it in a more personal way. We have always been open Sunday afternoons, but never drew this kind of response at the old site on Broughton Street."

Accountants Get Results of Exams

TO PRESERVE EXHIBIT

LONDON (CP)—The Skylon, one of the leading ornamental exhibits of the festival of Britain, may be moved to the Crystal Palace festival site of 1851. Authorities say this would cost about £30,000.

Artists Applaud Ex-Coal Miner

PARIS, Jan. 12 (AP)—A 78-year-old ex-coal miner, hailed as "The French Grandma Moses," is the hit of the Paris art season.

He is Dominique Lagru, who began painting only three years ago and has just had his first exhibition, described by critics as "the most important artistic discovery of the year."

Grandma Moses is the elderly American woman, with no art training, who has been dubbed an artistic genius for her simple paintings of upstate New York country life.

Lagru made his first brush out of fibre from an old shoe brush stuck in a pen holder, and began with two tubes of paint. Like Grandma Moses, his style is primitive. His subject preoccupation is with early Christianity and the beginning of the world.

Lagru, who spent 42 years of his life in the coal mines, began painting to get money to buy books.

"I've always been a great reader," he says, "and have gone through all of Darwin, the Bible, Montaigne, Pascal, Schopenhauer, Jules Verne. . .

"When I retired just after the war, I had no money to buy books. Then I got the idea of painting to give me something to do, and also to deliver my mind of all the images crowding in on it."

Critics say his work is "naive" and "amusingly awkward," but express respect for his sense of composition and the distinction of his colors.

His first painting, named "Avant L'Homme," meaning "before man," is a forest scene peopled by creatures neither completely men nor beasts.

Although he cares little for perspective, he is meticulous about details. He says it takes him 24 hours to paint just a tree.

"He paints as a bird sings," concluded a critic.

Seats in the ancient church at Lammi, near Helsinki in Finland, will be warmed next winter by electric rods hidden underneath.

Highly-Praised Ballad Singer To Appear Here

Richard Dyer-Bennet, American minstrel ballad singer, will be the next attraction on the Victoria circuit of the Famous Artists' celebrity series shows, Jan. 28.

The young entertainer—an excellent guitarist as well as singer—is said to have an astounding repertoire.

The New York World Telegram [illegible] into an old ballad and making it come alive like something fresh from a poet's heart. He takes an English, French, German or Swedish folk song, and presto, the centuries roll back, the mists vanish and you hear the echo of some nameless bard's cry of pain and passion."

In recent years, Dyer-Bennet has given more than a dozen recitals in Town and Carnegie Halls and has been heard on national radio programs.

Music critics say his art is satisfying to popular and cultivated tastes.

The minstrel will be followed by famous Metropolitan Opera Company soprano, Patrice Munsel, who will appear on the Royal stage March 12.

March 18, former Metropolitan Opera Company prima ballerina Marina Svetlova will bring her company of five here.

Club's Crest To Be Shown

S. Joyce, president of the New Imperial Social Club, will officiate at an unveiling ceremony at the club, 1110 Hillside, at 8 p.m. Tuesday when the organization's new crest will be shown for the first time.

The crest, made from plaster of paris, stands four feet high and depicts a maple leaf imposed on a Union Jack.

The next meeting of the club will be held the same evening. Following the unveiling and official business, a program of entertainment has been arranged.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♦	Pass	2 N.T.	3 ♥
3 ♠	Pass	3 N.T.	Pass
4 ♣	Pass	4 ♦	Pass
6 ♦	Pass	Pass	Pass

Well, at any rate East did not double the enemy and thereby expose himself to a redouble which would have cost him an extra 410 points as he defended the hand.

It is obvious that South could have done pretty well by passing East's three-heart call around to North, who certainly would have doubled, but it was natural and logical for South to show his other suits in an effort to reach a slam. It is true that South's actual slam bid was something of a gamble since North's bidding had been non-committal throughout, but it is only fair to concede that South had a hand which induced strong temptation.

West opened his top heart, dummy's ten was put in, and South ruffed East's king with the eight of diamonds. South then lay down the diamond king, and East was in with the blank ace. Without hesitation, East returned a club, and South soon spread his cards.

If East had given closer consideration to the bidding and to South's play of the diamond eight at the first trick, he might have realized that the outstanding defensive chance lay in forcing another trump from the closed hand. There was sound reason to hope that South had started with only a five-card diamond suit, and if this was so all East had to do was to put down the heart ace in order to bring a sure trump trick for his partner.

UP TO MY NECK IN CHINTZ!

This stuff I write in the kitchen-nook, but THIS time I've got a new outlook; I'm in the dining-room, out here in our hut, so maybe I'll get right outa my rut. Trudie's beside at the same table, memorizing the 7, 8 & 9 times table. She's sucking an orange at the same time, "ask me," sed she, "what's 8 times 9???" "Listen," I replied, "will you kindly shut-up, with you & your oranges I'm slightly fed-up. So run away, beat it, shoo. 8 times 9 is seventy-two." And THAT, my friends, about all you need, if to this plug you'll only heed. Ten bucks we give for your old kitchen-klunk, so come buy some chrome, a glistening new chunk. Across this room is a fireplace, the fire reflected in an amber vase; on the mantel above ticks the clock, I throw on the flames another block; it sparkles up the narrow shaft, sure throws the heat, has a marvellous draught. I settle back, my thots to retrace, I gaze at the curtains . . . & . . . "The Chase." Glazed chintz it is, a hunting scene, the road is brown, the shrubbery green. Four horses there are, the fence to attack, all riders, red coats, 'cept one in black. The guy nearest me wasn't so hot, his horse has baulked, he's flat on his bot. His high silk topper is jammed on his face, the dogs out front, hot on the chase.

The next one over just made the grind, about all I can see is the nag's bo-hind. A sleek, brown hunter is next in back, he has the rider who's dressed in black. I think he'll make it, the front hoofs high, in any case, it's a darn good try. We wish YOU'D try & fix up your home, plastic the place with our colorful chrome. Away in the distance in a tree clump, a rider is slapping his horse's rump. They're going like crazy, he has the knack, tail straight out & ears laid back. The one that was thrown, couldn't stand the pace, still has his topper jammed on his face. His shiny black boots still high in the air. It looks from here, like he'll always be there. There's still another, on a dappled grey, his head is down, but he's too far away; so of his expression, I'm not quite certain, it's crumpled a bit in the fold of the curtain. This scene is repeated above & below; I can hear the dogs bark, & the shouts "Tally-ho." It's the same on the curtain facing the front. I'm lost in the midst of this red-coated hunt. "C'mon," I just sed, to the man in the trance, "get yourself up, & dust off your pants." His horse is close by, the reins hanging loose, but old white-pants, yes, he's a gone-goose. I'm getting outa here, going back to my nook, 'cause I'm SURE . . . just now I wasn't mistook; yes, I'm SURE I heard a peculiar sound, I looked again at that dope on the ground. And then thru the curtain peeped the fox, "you can't catch me . . . you clumsy old ox." Then he looked at me, the curtain he shook, yes, I'm gettin' outa here . . . GOING BACK TO MY NOOK.
